TRADE BARRIER
IS THREATENED
IN ARGENTINA

Ambassador Says Higher
Tariff Policy May Result from U. S. Action

MUST GUARD EXPORTS
Emphasizes Southern Nation's Dependence Upon
Its Sales Abroad

New York.—(AP)—Ambassador Don Manuel E. Malbran of Argentina, today told the National Foreign Trade convention that his country might be forced to embark on a high tariff policy in defense against the tariff barriers of the United States and other countries.

Don Manuel emphasized that Argentina's economic health depends on the extent of her export trade; and that the diminution of that trade may require her to protect and develop her own industry just as the United States has done with high tariffs.

"Then," he said, "you would lose a good market for your manufactures (I speak of the remote future), but in exchange you would gain our gratitude for having taught us to make use of high tariffs."

American exports to Argentina in 1929 represented more than 40 per cent of the total South American exports, the ambassador said, and the exports of the first three months of 1931 have decreased about 60 per cent from 1930, which in turn was 39 per cent under 1929.

Don Manuel called the United States tariff prohibitive rather than protective, adding that in the case of linseed the tariff had been changed upward 20 times—and that nevertheless the United States produces less linseed today than she did in 1901, when the tariff was one-third as high.

No Rapid Action

The ambassador said, the president would change rates when so advised by the tariff commission, adding that "the truth is that Argentine petitions to the commission have not met with the same good fortune in regard to celerity of procedure as petitions regarding items coming from other countries. But in spite of this I still have faith."

"Beef," the ambassador said, "used to be a large item in our trade with the United States; from 1915 to 1925 Argentine beef was imported into your country without question; but when one case of foot and mouth disease occurred in California, its source was attributed to beef coming from my country and that was all that was needed for establishing a prohibition against the importation of Argentine beef, and the tariff law of 1930 includes this prohibition in one of its clauses."

The ambassador then pointed out that in similar cases Great Britain has sent experts to Argentina, who, after lengthy investigation, have concluded the charges were unwarranted.

FIVE STILL MISSING
IN SEA FOX MYSTERY

New York.—(AP)—Convinced that either fire or an explosion brought disaster to the sloop Sea Fox and its party of four men and three women, Coast Guard cutters today continued to search Long Island sound today for the five victims still missing.

The finding of a second woman's body yesterday, that of Miss Doris E. Dwyer, a psychologist at Bellevue hospital, and bits of a charred life preserver led coast guard officials to believe that the sloop had exploded. The explosion of the auxiliary motor on the sloop, friends of the party, all of whom were known in medical and educational circles, said the engine did not work properly when the racing party started out Saturday.

The body of Mrs. Donald Snodden, wife of the owner of the sloop was found off Darien, Conn., Monday.

Tornado Hurls Speeding Train Off Track
ONE DEAD, OVER
SCORE INJURED
IN FREAK WRECK

Twelve Coaches Lifted from Tracks Near North Dakota-Minnesota Line

Fargo, N. D.—(AP)—Dashing along at a 50-mile an hour clip, the crack Great Northern Empire Builder, coast train deluge, eastbound from Seattle to Chicago, was picked up like a toy from its tracks and wrecked by a tornado eight miles southeast of here late Wednesday. One life was lost, more than a score injured, one probably fatally, and scores of passengers shaken up by the freak accident.

The death resulted when Andrew Anderson of Monticello, Wash., was hurled from the train through a window and ground to death beneath the wheels of the following coach. Mrs. Emily Hannan, Seattle suffered a broken back and was said by physicians today to have a slight chance for recovery.

Mrs. N. Troll, Minot, N. D., also was said to be in a serious condition at a Fargo hospital where many of the injured were taken. An infant daughter of Mrs. Hilda Quailley, Winchester, Wash., who also was injured, suffered a seriously bruised head.

The train had crossed the North Dakota-Minnesota line and was nearing Sabin, Minn., with Engineer E. E. McKee at the throttle. Without warning, as if from a cloud, the entire two-coach train was lifted from the tracks, moved east from the roadbed, and deposited with a thud on the prairie, leaving only the engine and tender on the tracks.

Struggle in Train

A "freak" spellbound by the suddenness of the disaster, a moment or two passed before realization of the horror of the wreck became manifest among the passengers. Men struggled frantically to shake their way over the debris, through shattered windows and jammed doors.

Passing motorists sped into Minot to get help.

FASCISTS CREATE
PROBLEM IN ROME

Students Destroy Pope's
Portrait in Attack on Publishing House

Rome.—(AP)—Destruction of a portrait of Pope Pius XI by Fascist students during an attack on a Catholic publishing house early today on the smoldering resentment of the Vatican toward the Italian government.

The young blackshirts stormed the headquarters of Civita Cattolica last night, stoning the windows and committing other depredations. They tore an oil painting of the pontiff from the wall, carried it into the streets and trampled on it, crying meanwhile:

"Here is a traitor to his country."

Heaving copies of the book "Il Papa" (the pope) out of the windows, they took them to the Piazza Colonna, near the foreign office, and consigned them to a bonfire, together with copies of Osservatore Romano, the paper which has been publishing accounts of purported Fascist indignities.

The march on the publishing house without interference by the police. Later, authorities dispersed the students as they broke into small groups and began parading the streets, shouting deprecatory cries such as:

"The incident was expected to lead to an exchange of notes between the Vatican and the government and perhaps to complicate an already strained situation."

JAPANESE ROYAL PAIR
SAIL TODAY FOR HOME

San Francisco.—(AP)—Prince Takamatsu, brother of the emperor of Japan, and his bride, Princess Kikuko, planned to sail for home today on the liner Chichibu Maru, the last state of their year's honeymoon tour to the world.

At a banquet tendered the prince and princess last night by the Japan Society of America, the prince expressed satisfaction at the welcome extended them in the United States. The hosts included Gov. James Rolph, Jr., and Mayor Angelo Rossi of San Francisco.

"It was indeed my good fortune that while we were in Washington," the prince said, "I had an opportunity to read the valuable historical documents of Japanese and American relations kept at the state department. I was deeply moved in tracing the unusual cordiality and amity that characterized the intercourse between our two countries."

Bar And Bench Eulogize
Three Deceased Justices

Tribute Paid to Crownhart, Stevens and Eschweiler at Services

Madison.—(AP)—In the chambers where they heard cases argued and where they returned decisions setting state judicial policies, three deceased justices of the state supreme court were eulogized here today.

Members of the Wisconsin bar and judges paid tribute in the high court room to the late Justices Charles H. Crownhart, Superior B. Ray Stevens, Madison, and Franz C. Eschweiler, Milwaukee, in the largest single ceremony in the court's history.

Edward J. Dempsey, Oshkosh, prominent attorney and president of the state board of normal school regents, presided the memorial to Justice Crownhart, and Justice Walter C. Owen, a former law partner of the deceased justice, responded on behalf of the court.

The memorial to Justice Stevens was given by his former partner, Burr W. Jones, a retired justice, and the response was made by Chief Justice Marvin E. Rosenberry.

George E. Blahorn, Milwaukee, offered the memorial to Justice Eschweiler, and the response was by Justice Oscar Fritz.

The State Federation of Labor sent Joseph A. Padway, Milwaukee, to present a memorial to Judge Crownhart, while the Dane County Bar association paid him tribute in a eulogy signed by Fred M. Wylie, Fred L. Holmes and William H. Spohn.

Justice Crownhart was described by Mr. Dempsey as "a pioneer in a new field," as the Oshkosh attorney dealt with his work as chairman of the State Industrial commission.

"He was a master of the art of arbitration," Mr. Dempsey said. "He knew how to make people arbitrate and compromise without sacrifice of principle. As a member of the industrial commission, he worked with unusual insight, rare common sense, and unflinching courage to secure and promote the common good. His work in this position was marked by all the attributes of statesmanship of the highest order."

Justice Jones described Justice Stevens as "a slave for work," when he spoke of him as:

"Political life with its excitements and contests and the prizes which it sometimes brings had no charms for him."

"He must have been greatly pleased by his election as associate justice of the supreme court since it was a recognition of his long and faithful service on the circuit bench and for continued and honorable service in the highest judicial office which his fellow citizens could bestow."

Wounds Girl
Who Spurned
Him As Lover

Wausau.—(AP)—Jealous and angered by her refusal to marry him, Walter Grunwald, 48, last night shot and wounded Miss Jean Zick, 20, who had made the heroine of his book, "The White Queen."

Grunwald, surrendered to police several hours later. They said he confessed, Miss Zick was in a serious condition at a hospital here, but hopes for her recovery were expressed by attending physicians. Grunwald is held in jail.

Grunwald had been courting the young woman since his arrival here about two years ago. He had worked in the mines of South Africa ten years previously and set about putting in writing the material he had gathered. Miss Zick collaborated. As an expression of his love, Grunwald past her in the leading part. The book was published but met with little success.

Grunwald repeatedly professed his love to Miss Zick but was not accepted. He became enraged yesterday when unable to communicate with her, police said. They quoted him as saying he thought she had gone out in company with another man.

He waited outside Miss Zick's home last night and conversed with her when she returned. Again she refused to marry him, whereupon police said, he fired one shot through the screen door, inside which she was standing. The bullet struck her in the left side. Grunwald fled, surrendering early today.

Police quoted Grunwald as saying he blamed Miss Zick for the loss of his fire and radiator repair shop here.

Grunwald was arraigned in court today and pleaded guilty to a charge of assault while armed with intent to kill. He was bound over to circuit court and remanded to the Marathon jail in default of $5,000 bond.

HONORARY FRATERNITY
ASKED TO ADMIT NEGRO

Madison.—(AP)—A joint resolution asking the University of Wisconsin chapter of Delta Sigma Rho, honorary public speaking fraternity, to rescind its action in barring G. James Fleming, New York, negro, from membership was adopted by the senate today.

Fleming, student at the university and winner of the Frankenberg prize for oratory, was denied membership in the local chapter because the organization's national constitution forbids admission to negroes.

Assemblyman Ben Rubin, Milwaukee Socialist, introduced the resolution requesting the fraternity to change its constitution. The measure occasioned much discussion in the senate before it was approved by a narrow majority. It had previously been adopted by the assembly.

"It was indeed my good fortune that while we were in Washington," the prince said, "I had an opportunity to read the valuable historical documents of Japanese and American relations kept at the state department. I was deeply moved in tracing the unusual cordiality and amity that characterized the intercourse between our two countries."

GOVERNOR HORTON
FACES SENATE TRIAL

Articles of Impeachment
Being Prepared by Tennessee House Committee

Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—Impeachment of Gov. Henry H. Horton was recommended to the house of representatives today.

John Tipton, chairman of a special legislative committee appointed to consider whether impeachment charges should be considered, said "we are engaged in the preparation of articles of impeachment. As soon as these articles are prepared, we will immediately report them to the house of representatives."

Administration forces claimed enough votes today to defeat the articles of impeachment when they are presented. It was generally understood that a vote might not be reached before tomorrow.

Thus far, the committee has not disclosed what charges against the governor were considered in its recommendation.

A majority report of the investigating committee charged the governor allowed personal friends to dominate his actions in affairs of state to their advantage.

Political Foe Assails
Briand's Political Stand

Paris.—(AP)—The chamber of deputies tonight gave a vote of confidence to the Laval cabinet by 318 votes to 261 following a debate on the foreign policy of Aristide Briand.

Paris.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Aristide Briand's bitter political enemy, opened an attack on the veteran foreign minister this afternoon in the chamber of deputies, assailing his handling of the Austro-German customs accord issue at Geneva.

Triand, he said, should have attacked that pact from a political standpoint instead of from an economic standpoint. All that France gained through Briand's efforts at Geneva, said he, was a delay of two months and eventually the league of nations council will have to consider the political aspects of the proposal anyway.

Bouillon reproached Briand's acquiescence to Arthur Henderson's view of the situation, asserting the policy which France has followed is simply the path of least resistance.

Bouillon criticized the choice of Mr. Henderson, British foreign sec-

KELLY CALLED UNRELIABLE BY STATE LAWYER

Carver Says Turnkey Named So Giese Could "Easily Tear Down Character"

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Admission that testimony of Dan Kelly, principal government witness, was unreliable unless corroborated was made today to a federal court jury by Nelson Carver, special prosecutor, in the liquor conspiracy trial of Frederick W. Giese, former Outagamie county sheriff, and his deputy, Luther Kemp.

With each of the three attorneys allotted one hour for summary arguments, the case was destined to reach the jury of 12 men late this afternoon.

It would be folly to believe the statements made from the witness stand here by Kelly, said Attorney Carver. Kelly pleaded guilty when the case went to trial Friday.

Kelly, former jailer under Giese and now serving a sentence in Wau-pun prison for burglary, was recalled to the stand as a rebuttal witness. He said that in 1926 he was discharged from the army on grounds of insanity and said that he had twice been confined in insane asylums.

Giese, also recalled for rebuttal, testified he discharged Kelly after he heard his subordinate had been "shaking down" bootleggers and roadhouse proprietors in the county. The former sheriff said his suspicion of Kelly was substantiated when Kelly Van Camp, a farmer, admitted he paid Kelly $50 for protection of a still which Kelly and Kemp found in operation on his farm.

Refused to Resign

When he went to present this evidence to the district attorney, Giese testified he was informed affidavits had been filed which also implicated Giese in the acceptance of bribes. Giese said he refused to resign on what he termed "drummed up" evidence and subsequently was made the target of ouster proceedings.

Giese was elected to a position of honor and trust and immediately set about making plans to turn his office into a profit for himself and his friends," Carver said. "He chose Kelly as his assistant because when the lightning struck he could easily be removed."

BULLETIN

Madison.—(AP)—The Duncanson Bill overhauling the regulatory powers of the state railroad commission leaped the last legislative barrier today when it found unanimous approval in the assembly.

The senate's amendments to the bill limit to a degree the commission's regulation of the common carrier holding companies and permits directors of Wisconsin utility corporations to be residents of other states.

Bank Doors
Are Closed
At Green Bay

McCartney National Is Put Under Control of Federal Examiners

Green Bay.—(AP)—The McCartney National bank failed to open its doors for business today exactly one week after George A. Richardson, 53, president, fatally wounded himself in a washroom of the downtown building.

Federal banking examiners took charge and immediately began an audit of the bank of directors, chairman, and officers. The bank could not be reached for a statement. It was generally understood frozen assets were the cause of the difficulties and that the directors hoped to reopen the institution soon.

A statement of the bank's condition, issued last March 31, showed time and demand deposits of more than $2,000,000. The McCartney bank was one of the oldest financial houses in the city.

Bank directors, at the time of Richardson's death, denied that a shortage in accounts existed. Taylor and relatives told Coroner Frank Hodek that ill health prompted the suicide and no inquest was held.

Says Depositors Protected

C. W. Loman, vice president, announced all depositors would be fully protected although stockholders probably would lose heavily. He said liquidation would be started at once but that it was not expected the bank would do business for several months.

Taylor assets and undivided surplus exceeded deposits by more than $500,000, Loman said. He said an additional $500,000 would be available by assessment against stockholders.

The banker said practically all investments are in Green Bay property. Two of the largest accounts which Loman characterized as safe but slow are with the old Green Bay Sugar company, now the Menominee River Sugar Co. and the Waterways Engineering company, recently organized. The latter three indebtedness is about $400,000 which, it was expected, will be repaid upon fulfillment of government contracts.

Closing of the bank followed heavy withdrawals of depositors' accounts after Richardson's death. There was no demonstration when the announcement was posted and only a few persons congregated in front of the bank.

"STUNTS" IN PULPITS
ASSAILED BY BISHOP

Eau Claire.—(AP)—Sensationalism and "stunts" he termed common in church pulpits today were branded as "offenses of Christian decency, degrading of gospel and an insult to Christ," by the Rt. Rev. Paul E. Wilson, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Eau Claire, at the closing session of the third annual council of the diocese.

The world needs stability and confidence, he said, and persons are looking for the gospel which means something and says it with conviction.

"There are those," he said, "possessed with the curious idea that the best way to render the gospel acceptable is to make it cheap, trivial devices and sermons are being multiplied to attract attention."

LaCrosse was chosen as the 1932 meeting place and the following officers: Albert H. Head, Spooner, secretary; Otto Van Schuler, Eau Claire, treasurer; C. T. Brady, Eau Claire, chancellor; Ralph W. Owen, Eau Claire, missionary treasurer; and the Rev. Frank Randall, Menomonie, registrar.

BEGIN CONFERENCE ON DEEP WATERWAY PLANS

Port Arthur, Ont.—(AP)—Delegates from the United States and Canada gathered here today to formulate plans for the furtherance of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence deep waterway project at the on-to-the-sea convention.

Among those from the United States invited to attend the three-day session were Governor Lloyd D. Smith of Minnesota, and Mayor W. S. Smyke of Duluth, Minn. Canadian delegates included G. E. Brown of Windsor, Ont., president of the Canadian Deep Waterways association, and C. A. Maguire of Toronto, president of the Great Lakes Rivers and Harbors association.

Mayor P. V. Ibbotson of Port Arthur, and Mayor E. G. Murphy of Port William, are sharing the position of host to the delegates.

SEES UTILITIES
AS ISSUE FOR NEXT CAMPAIGN

Senator Goodland Says Bill Is "Purely Political Issue Two Years Hence"

Madison.—(AP)—A belief that progressives will try to make the public utility question an issue in the next gubernatorial election was expressed by Sen. Walter Goodland, Racine conservative, during debate on a bill in the senate today.

The bill was introduced by Sen. O. S. Loomis, Mauston, and creates a state public utility corporation which will promote a comprehensive plan of public utility ownership and operation in Wisconsin.

"The bill is purely political and for the purpose of creating an issue two years hence for the present administration," Sen. Goodland said.

Sen. George Blanchard, Edgerton, introduced a resolution which asks the attorney general to render an opinion on the constitutionality of the bill. The resolution was adopted over the objections of Sen. Loomis who contended it was merely an attempt to delay the bill.

The Milwaukee benefits and assessments bill was sent to the governor today after the senate concurred in an assembly amendment. Under the terms of the measure, Milwaukee may make special assessments or awards of damages against property affected by public improvements.

The amendments exempt the property of charitable and religious institutions from the special assessments and declares that if this portion of the bill is unconstitutional, the use to which such property is put shall be considered in making assessments. Another amendment, putting the entire question to a referendum, was adopted yesterday.

HOUSE ADVANCES
INCOME TAX BILL

Assembly Engrosses High School Aid Measure by Vote of 52 to 33

Madison.—(AP)—Income taxes are increased about $1,700,000 by the Gehrmann-Harper high school aid bill engrossed and advanced to a third reading by the assembly yesterday. The vote was 52 to 33.

The bill increases by one-half of 1 per cent tax rates on incomes above $5,000 and decreases exemptions about $5. It repeals all mill taxes on general property for common schools, normal schools and the university. Under terms of the measure, funds raised are distributed about 75 per cent to the state and the remainder to local units. It provides payment by the state of funds now under the repealed mill taxes and general state aid to high schools, $250 per elementary teacher to counties and the balance to local units on the basis of income taxes paid.

The lower house passed a bill asking investigation of the management of farm cooperatives and killed by a 40-20 vote a bill to tax and regulate the sale or manufacture of nitro-glycerine, malt extract or wort for other than medicinal or commercial brewing purposes. The Harper bill providing that county superintendents of schools may hire one or more supervising teachers within a county on authorization from the county board, approved and the senate committee bill making hearings before court commissioners open to the public was concurred in.

PASS FUND BILL FOR HOLDOVER SENATORS

Madison.—Salaries of 18 senators who failed to benefit from the raise ordered by the 1929 legislature will be boosted to equal those of other members under a bill passed by the senate last night.

The senators elected in 1928 were not entitled to the raise, the supreme court ruled, because they could not raise their own salaries. The bill appropriates $1,300 to each of the 16 senators. Holdover senators receive but $500 for the biennium as compared with $2400 for legislators elected in 1930.

UP NEARLY TEN MILES
Buoyancy of Gas Too Great to Permit Landing Until After Sunset

Over Gurgl, Gutz Valley, Tyrol.—(AP)—Safe from a hazardous exploratory balloon voyage to the stratosphere, Prof. August Piccard and his assistant Dr. Charles Kipfer, today were enroute from their landing place on a glacier above this town to Ober Gurgl.

The balloonists, for whose safety fears had been held many hours, declared their trip had been a success and estimated that they had reached a height of 52,500 feet, almost ten miles, and a new altitude record.

After 18 hours and 13 minutes in the air, swept by varying currents over many parts of south Europe, the adventurous tandem safely and in good health at 10:48 last night on a glacier above Gurgl.

Their instruments were safe and their balloon in good condition. Efforts to bring these down the valley were being made this afternoon.

REACHED THEIR GOAL

Brussels.—(AP)—Prof. August Piccard telegraphed today from Ober Gurgl that he and Charles Kipfer were safe after their flight into the stratosphere.

"After a long and difficult journey we made a good landing," the message said. "Both Kipfer and I are well. We reached the height at which we are aiming."

"We're both very tired," the physicist said, "but otherwise we're well and happy. Our balloon is safe and the slight damage to the instruments is hardly worth mentioning."

The day was excellent for observations, but the buoyancy of the balloon was so great that we could land only after the sun had gone down.

"I did not choose any particular landing place but we saw a glacier and thought that would be as good as any other spot."

"We landed smoothly but too late to look for human habitations so we spent the night in our gondola."

Early this morning, he said, they got their bearings and walked down the mountainside toward Ober Gurgl, meeting the rescue expedition as it came up.

OBTAINED VALUABLE DATA

Insbruck, Austria.—(AP)—Prof. August Piccard, teaching the Alpine town of Gurgl this afternoon, said his adventurous flight into the stratosphere had been "magnificent beyond conception," and that he and Charles Kipfer had broken the world's altitude record by more than 12,000 feet.

They were lost control of their balloon, he said, and gathered valuable scientific data in their long hours aloft in the metal gondola, suspended from the gas bag.

The balloon itself, lying on the "groscher Gurgler Kerner," 8,000 feet up in the Alps, is to be salvaged by a detachment of the Tyrolean Alpine chamois.

The two balloonists planned to rest at Ober Gurgl until the balloon and its instruments are brought down.

PERSHING CHEERED BY 25 VISITING MAYORS

Paris.—(AP)—America's 25 touring mayors today gave General Pershing an ovation when he appeared at a luncheon given by the American club.

Judge Frank M. Padden, representing the mayor of Chicago, expressing the mayors' appreciation for the hospitality which has been extended by France since the tour began.

Theodore Rousseau, president of the club, won General Pershing's endorsement of his assertion that it was a happy thought to bring the mayors of America's "average cities" to Paris.

Mayor Baker of Portland, Ore., who introduced Mr. Padden, said it was reported in the United States that "we are eating our way across France."

"Worse than that," he said, "we are swimming our way across, but we are doing it in fine spirits."

DETROIT FLIERS SET
ENDURANCE RECORD

Jacksonville Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Walter Lees and Frederick Brossey, Detroit aviators, flying a Diesel motor monoplane, set a world's non-refueling flight record of 78 hours, 23 minutes, at 11:10 A. M., eastern standard time today. They did not land but continued their flight, which began at 6:47 A. M. E. S. T. last Monday. The old mark of 75 hours and 23 minutes was set recently in northern Africa by two Frenchmen.

QUARREL ENDS IN 2 MURDERS NEAR MONDOVI

Police Say Enraged Husband Shot Wife and Her Mother, Attempted Suicide

Monrovia, Wis. —(P)—A quarrel reputedly starting over an argument about a pall of water last night resulted in death to Mrs. Lucille Waldebill, 29, and her mother, Mrs. John Cain, 45. Authorities said Lucille's husband, George Waldebill, 29, shot and killed them with a shotgun and then attempted suicide by drinking poison. His condition is critical.

According to Deputy Sheriff Alex Lunderville, the husband lay on the grass on the lawn of the Cain's farm home, near here about dusk, playing with his year old son and watching his wife sprinkle flowers. The wife asked him to get a bucket of water. He refused. She chided him as "lazy." Enraged, George rushed into the house and returned with a shotgun. He was going to kill Lucille. She dropped to her knees, begging for mercy as he fired the gun, the charge striking her in the head.

Mr. and Mrs. Cain, hearing the argument, ran out in time to see their daughter fall dead. Mrs. Cain started around the house and George fired at her, the slugs hitting her in the back of the head and killing her instantly.

Cain said he grappled with George, attempting to wrest the gun from him, and when George threatened to kill him also, he picked up the baby and ran to the road where he caught a ride into Mondovi and notified authorities.

Meanwhile, George called his mother telling her what he had done and then telephoned Dr. A. Arundson, Mondovi, stating, "I've just shot two women. Come on out."

The doctor said when he arrived the body of the young wife was in the kitchen, and George, apparently dazed, was prone across it. As the doctor examined the wife, he looked up in time to see the husband drink something from a bottle. Then George fell unconscious.

A note addressed to his mother and telling her he was ending it all

EXPECT RAILS WILL ASK FOR RATE INCREASE

Direct Application to Interstate Commerce Commission Seen

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—The rather curt reply of the interstate commerce commission to the informal request for a general investigation into the railroad situation in the United States on the initiative of the commission was somewhat of a humiliation to railroad executives today. It does not, however, close the door to a direct application on their part for a horizontal increase in freight rates.

This is what is now likely to be done. The method of procedure was under discussion Wednesday at a second conference in the past week of the committee of executives headed by President Pelley of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, appointed to deal with this most important of all railroad matters at the present time.

It is believed that the commission would be willing to proceed with an investigation on its own motion, pending this course of action to a direct request from the carriers. Apparently, the attitude of the majority members of the commission and one of the minority who exert a powerful influence on the majority, was misunderstood.

There was at least no equivocation in the statement just announced by the secretary of the commission on one method of procedure.

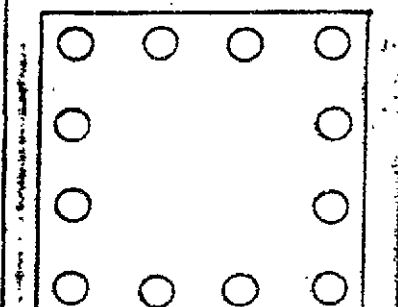

See Petition Next
What the railroads are likely to do now is to petition for a horizontal increase in freight rates, which they deem necessary in order to reserve their credit and to prevent their many of their bonds from dropping out of the list of those in which savings banks and trustees. It is believed that adjustments in rates could be made even on a horizontal basis, but that such a structure that would not inflict injury to shippers whose products have been greatly depreciated in value and also in other cases where the imposition of a higher rate than now prevails would obviously throw traffic into such competitive channels as motor truck and water lines.

It was pointed out today that in the crisis of 1920 the commission was able to analyze the railroad situation and come to a conclusion as a necessity within two and one-half months of the time of the filing of the application. If such a request is now presented to the commission, it would be possible to reach a decision late in the summer. An increase was granted, the benefit of it would apply in part in the final quarter of 1931.

Need Is Apparent
The need for an increase is fully apparent in the number of railroad dividends that were reduced last week, followed by the omission of the dividend on Pere Marquette common stock Wednesday and the announcement for further evidence satisfactory earnings before additional payments are to be made on Boston & Maine common stock. The come of the roads that have reported for April shows a net operating decrease of about 25 per cent. This is rather more than in March. It has been foreshadowed in the decrease in car loadings in the past month. Those of the last two weeks have shown a 20 per cent shrinkage compared with a year ago and are well below the level previously reached last November.

Some of the most significant April reports so far published are those of Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Chicago & Northwestern, New Haven, Erie, Northern Pacific, Frisco, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Union Pacific. The Pennsylvania last month had a decrease in net operating income of about 55 per cent. In the first four months of the calendar year, its operating income has fallen off more than 50 per cent. Compared with the reduction amounts to over 90 per cent. The St. Paul has experienced a 50 per cent reduction in net operating income in the past four months.

Missouri-Kansas-Texas in April had a deficit after interest charges of $217,594. The New Haven shows up much better than other eastern lines with a net operating income loss last month of about 12 per cent.

Erie earnings were "in the red" in April. The Northern Pacific on a gross income of $5,216,076 showed a net of less than $10,000. The Frisco had a surplus, after charges, in April under $5,000 on a gross business of over $4,800,000. Chesapeake & Ohio, which has just declared its regular dividend had a surplus, after charges, of $1,510,877, or a 25 per cent shrinkage from the year previous. The Union Pacific had its April operating income cut down about 50 per cent. However, neither it nor Atchison, Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake and Ohio whose regular dividends are at the rate of $10 a share, need consider for some time any concession in these rates to the present period of low railroad net profits.

The joys of BEER

are not forbidden

There is today a malt-and-hop brew even better than the best of old. It is made by one who knows the best and brewed it.

Not a "near-beer," not a makeshift. It has all the best qualities of the old brews, all the purity, all the age. All the flavor and aroma, all the sparkle and the foam. It has all the delights, all the soothing qualities, all the digestive helps. It has the esters and the aldehydes—the chief invigorating factors.

Most of the alcohol is evaporated after brewing, but you miss that only in imagination. Were you told that this was a pre-war brew, you could not discover the difference.

The tonic factors, the digestive factors, soothing, sleep-producing factors are still there. Atlas Special Brew has more delights than old brews. You will enjoy it more when you know it, and those joys will never be forbidden.

Don't deny yourself a malt-and-hop brew, just because one factor is decreased. Don't turn to substitutes, wretched and impure, just for that small percentage.

This is a Master Brew

Atlas Special Brew is a superlative creation. We use the finest barley malt, the best Bohemian hops. We treat the water that we use to match the finest European brews.

The quality and purity are certified on every bottle by a famous independent laboratory.

Drink it if you miss the old delights, the old aids to sleep and digestion. All those factors are at their best in Atlas Special Brew.

SUFFERING IS NOW A MEMORY

How Results That Konjola Have Come To Stay—Test This Remarkable Medicine

Mr. John Reed, 443 West South Street, Indianapolis, makes this interesting statement: "I suffered terribly from gas pains after eating. A sluggish liver and weak kidneys brought on rheumatism. This went on for three years, and then Konjola relieved all of these ailments, for a months' treatment. This opened over a year ago and none of my troubles ever returned."

Konjola was equally effective in case of Mrs. Margaret Guilkey, 976 Pleasant Run, Park, Indianapolis. She stated: "For seven years stone condition bowel disorders had me a weakened condition. I suffered severely my rheumatism, heart-palpitation, headaches and dizzy spells. Konjola ended all these ailments after a short treatment none of them has since returned."

THE PRESIDENT AND SENATOR LAFOLLETTE

The President's refusal to call congress into session before its regular December day of convention received general support from the business interests of the country, and enthusiasm from many sources which happened to be in agreement with his statement that "we cannot legislate ourselves out of a world depression."

From these quarters there was the plain fear that laws enacted from a congress under the spur of haste and a desire to do something, whatever it might be, would probably make conditions worse.

Senator LaFollette spoke harshly of the President's statement as a "do-nothing policy," and suggested several things he believed that congress could and should do, one of the principal ones in this language:

"Immediate assistance to the cities, counties and states, in relieving distress of the unemployed and their dependents."

This plan suggests several questions. Is it properly a purpose of the federal government to give assistance to "cities, counties and states" in relieving the distress of their inhabitants? Why should not the "cities, counties and states" take care of their own? To what provision of our constitution or to what part of our history can we refer in justification of the federal government raising taxes to relieve distress in different spots in the country, whether from unemployment or other cause?

The question should not be lightly brushed aside. Like every humanitarian effort it is worthy of careful consideration and study.

When people are in need of food there is little time to discuss in detail the modus operandi of providing it, else before the decision is made harm results. And however good-natured or easy-going different communities may be in their willingness to help, the decision, where there is time, should be made upon a solid and dependable basis and not in a helter-skelter manner.

The depression has struck different parts of the country in different degrees. Wisconsin as a matter of fact has suffered about the least of any state. Great industrial centers like Detroit and New York have felt the depression keenest.

Has a national congress in such a situation any inherent right to make the people of Wisconsin provide a share of what New York or Detroit needs?

If we consider the question very broadly and speak of ourselves as one people, erasing state lines and all the differences in situation, wealth and property of various communities, the proposition might have support in principle.

But there are greater reasons against it, one of the strongest arising from the practical impossibility of fairly, equitably or even decently dividing or prorating the funds raised. Assuming that the federal government raised a billion dollars for the purpose, how much should go to Los Angeles and how much to Detroit, how much to Miami and how much to Appleton? Such a measure would induce more log rolling, greater wastage and extravagance than any pork barrel that ever had its lid pried off before.

Another natural question is: Are there any cities, counties or states in the country unable to take care of their own unemployed? We have communities whose financial affairs have been run poorly, but we have no bankruptcies aside from some places in Florida whose condition was never occasioned by unemployment but by wild speculation. Shall the federal government take care of the speculators too? And if the unemployed, why not the speculators? Is not their condition as unhappy?

Of course it is clear that every community in this state, and elsewhere, can take care of its own and in better fashion than setting up another bureau at Washington for that purpose.

COMRADES IN ARMS

The refusal of the war memorial committee of Cornell University to include in the list of honored Cornell war dead, the names of former students who fought and died for the Central powers, is in contrast to a resolution offered by a branch of the American Legion in New York City, declaring that "our fallen comrades who threw to us the torch did not intend to be a perpetual pillar of hate to be transmitted to children even unto the third and fourth generation... therefore, be it resolved, by the Lexington Post, that we urge either now or the revision of old treaties so that love and friendship may supplant envy and hate in the minds of generations in Europe yet unborn and insure that our children's children may never be driven into the horrors of another war."

This resolution was offered at a dinner given to former German and Austrian soldiers who are now, or due to become American citizens.

Time was when hatreds engendered by the war coursed through the veins of American soldiers. The enemy—the "Huns," the "boche"—were to be obliterated by all the paraphernalia of modern warfare and when that was over were still to be crushed forever and a day.

A "world safe for democracy" and "a surcease from all wars" was in the offing as the German and American soldiers struggled on that trench-marked and shell-pitted soil of France. But it cannot come from a continuance of war feelings.

Time goes on, and these hatreds, unless deeply nourished, pass away and the thought remains of strife and the uselessness of it all. With most there persists the memory of worthy and respected adversaries who can very easily be received into a mutual comradeship of arms compared to which the frivolities and petty bickerings of life are as nothing, and, by the new comradeship, so created, something substantial is built, perhaps even powerful enough to ward off other conflicts.

THE RED CROSS

The American Red Cross, with its thirty-five hundred chapters throughout the nation, is celebrating its silver jubilee and fifty years of humanitarian service.

Clara Barton, founder of the American branch, devoted many years of patience and perseverance to obtain governmental recognition and this country's adherence to the Geneva convention providing for the succor of the sick and wounded in war. The government's fear of "entangling alliances" caused this support to be withheld.

Conceived originally as an organization to mitigate the horrors of war, its activities now include assistance to stricken peoples throughout the world, from whatever cause. The Red Cross emblem may be seen wherever humanity is suffering and its services are too large to measure.

Tenets and principles of the Red Cross were seriously threatened during the last session of congress. Governmental donations to this organization, no matter how great the need, would have destroyed its future effectiveness. A worthy tribute must be paid to the farsightedness of administration and Red Cross leaders that it was not made a subsidiary of government and so deprived of the voluntary public support which has and will continue to carry it on.

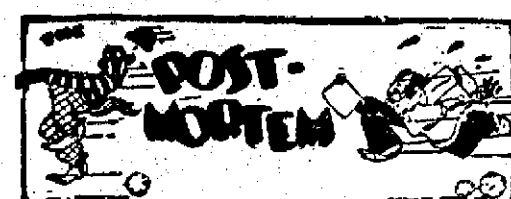

Its jubilee anniversary may be doubly celebrated in that it still remains an institution of mercy free from all political intrigue or duress, receiving its support wholly through voluntary subscriptions.

The Red Cross, representing neither race nor creed, has become the world's symbol of charity and a worthy monument to those who have given their heart and soul to its foundation and progress.

WOMEN'S HANDS

The hands of the women of today—are they larger than the hands of their grandmothers? There is no question of old style costumes, which does not reveal, at least, the diminutive gloves, the exquisite smallness of our female predecessors, both living and extinct. Few women of this generation, moreover, are able to wear the wedding rings, the other rings, or the bracelets of their ancestors. One is able to control the hand which controls the flying machine, and which wielded the needle and the loom, of course, remain as small and graceful as the one which had but to hold a handkerchief of lace.—Paris (France) Le Matin.

THE KIRKLAND trial is apparently over... and if the Post-Mortem ever has a place in which to flippantly warble about things, people and events, the Indiana farce should be warbled all through the column today... but why spoil anybody's appetite? ... there have been a lot of jokes on the American judiciary... but this one has them all looking down... and when the verdict had been given, three jurors thought they were voting for something else... if we ever have a trial, we'll prefer settling it with a pair of galloping dominoes... apparently there's about as much justice.

He Should Have Worked at Home

And we note that an American swindler went to London to make a few million, made 'em all right, and came back. But, odd as it may seem, he's been caught and will have to face trial in England.

Which means that he's likely to be convicted and sentenced, poor fellow.

Back to royalty for a minute. King Carol, the playboy of Bucharest, has ordered Queen Helene's picture taken down from all public buildings and told the police not to show Helene any favors when she comes along in her car. Helene divorced the lad some years ago for not coming home often enough, y'know.

Now the king's honor has been avenged and everything is just like, Oh yeah?

THE NEW DAY

Never a day without something worth seeing. Something to soften and sweeten the sadness; Something to startle the eye or entrance it. Never a day but a smile may enhance it. Never a day that is just like its brother; Always it's different in some way or other.

Comes a new bud into blossom, or maybe A new tooth is found in the mouth of the baby; Somebody leaves us or somebody tarries; Someone goes visiting, somebody marries; Some man invents a new trick to sell us. Somebody stows with a new jest to tell us.

When the day dawns there is no way of knowing What joy is coming or what care is going. What it above us the storm clouds may lovelier, We may in trouble a new friend discover. What if we wake to the same dreary duty. The eye may find somewhere a new touch of beauty.

Never a day without something of gladness. Something worth doing and something worth being.

Even the oldest find something to live for. Something to wait for and something to give for. Always some new joy or problem arises. Never a day dawns without some surprises.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 31, 1906

A gift of $2,000 had been received by Lawrence university from John C. McMullen, Oakland, Calif., a graduate of the local institution with the class of '80.

J. Henry Harbeck was in Milwaukee the previous day on business.

W. S. Patterson left that morning on a business trip to the northern part of the state.

The Misses Clara and Meta Stumpf were visiting friends and relatives in Harrison for a few days.

Walter Gmelter and Claude Bomier spent Memorial Day in Oshkosh with friends and relatives.

Edward Cleveland returned that morning from an extended visit through the northern portion of the state.

Henry Molitor left that morning for New York where he was to fill a position of soloist in one of the churches during the summer.

Mrs. William Simon and Mrs. John Beringer left for Europe that morning where they were to visit their parents in Belgium and Luxembourg, respectively.

Leonard Schwartz, formerly employed at the Sherman house barbershop, had opened a shop of his own in Grand Rapids, Mich.

TEN YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 26, 1921

President Harding had decided to appoint William Howard Taft to the high office of chief justice of the United States as successor to the late Edward Douglas White, it was learned that day.

The Wisconsin Railroad commission that morning ordered an increase in gas rates in Appleton, Neenah, and Menasha of 25 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Application for a marriage license was made that day by D. O. Anderson, Brooklyn, N. J., and Etta L. Townsend, Appleton.

W. C. Wynn, president of the Fox River Paper company, was named to the executive committee of the Writing Paper Manufacturing association, and C. S. Boyd, president of the Appleton Coated Paper company, was elected to the executive committee of the Coated Paper Manufacturing association, by the American Paper and Pulp association and affiliated groups of paper manufacturers, New York.

HOW A TEACHER SHOULD DEAL WITH THE CRI

Western New York correspondent asks:

Why should a teacher have to send home a child with a cold? Why doesn't the mother keep the child at home in the first place? Some mothers are enlightened, but the majority jump on our back if we send a child home for no reason but "a little cold." If we do send them home our attendance average is poor and we have the sovereign State of New York through the education department demanding "Why? What shall the teacher do then, poor thing?"

I don't know about city schools but I do know that in rural schools teachers do not refuse children the privilege of leaving the room. Pupils come and go quietly as used to be, without asking permission. A few take advantage of this and have to be shown the error of their ways.

I believe the rural schools are at least as progressive in this latter method as the city schools. Some of our big town schools are so far behind the times that the people have to prosecute teachers or principals now and then to teach them the error of their ways, especially in the quaint practice of assault and battery in the schoolroom.

It is a difficult problem for a teacher to face. I know well enough. The school authorities instruct her to send home children who come with "colds." They do not tell her how she is to diagnose the alleged "cold." They simply pass the buck to the teacher, and she has to use her own judgment, which, of course, is hardly shift the responsibility to the shoulders of the teacher.

I would suggest to the teacher in this predicament that she follow this policy: Whenever a pupil seems to have a running nose, a cough, much sneezing, or a stuffed nose or mouth breathing anything like a sore throat or hoarseness, send the pupil to the principal for decision whether the condition warrants sending the child home. If there is no principal or if the principal is too fussy to be concerned in the business, then send the kid home, but do not venture any opinion as to the cause of the ailment and above all do not say the child has a "cold" or even a "cough." Just send along to the parent a note that the child has a running nose, cough, hoarseness or whatever it is you have noticed, and let it go at that.

If the school has even a pretense of medical inspection no teacher or nurse should ever take the responsibility of sending a pupil home with a cold. That is strictly a duty of the medical inspector.

If any parent comes complaining about the sending home of a child with a cold, the teacher should not argue the point. Just shift the argument to the principal or to the medical inspector. If the school boasts one; that is, if the parent does not bring a proper certificate or written statement by the family doctor that the child's trouble is not communicable.

As for the attendance records, if that is the main thing the education department should bestir itself in the attempt to elicit from the state health authorities a communicable "cold" or whatever the old fossils prefer to call it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
When the Kids Have the Cri

We have had much success with your hand lotion and Whitfield's lotion that we are applying to you in our present difficulty. Being ardent believers in your teachings on birth control we have five kids of assorted sizes and genders raising the roof with the cri. We confidently expect you to tell us how to handle 'em when they cough so much and when they have the sneezes and everything.

(J. F. C.)

Answer—Incense stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on coryza. It tells you how to deal with cri, and it contains directions for preparing the fool-proof cough medicine.

Listen to the Gurgles
I am troubled rather often with sore throat. It seems to me that if one can toughen the gums by brushing the teeth... it should be possible to toughen the throat... anyway you'll recognize this is no sort of trouble for a preacher. I usually gurgles with... and get over it in a day or two. (Rev. H. H. A.)

Answer—You should giggle, not gurgles. That's what I do whenever I hear of anybody using the nostrum. Incense stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for the gaggle for singers and speakers. Usually such trouble as yours depends on some neglected conditions in the nose. Sometimes it is confined to the throat. You should have a careful nose and throat examination, and perhaps some treatments.

Hay Fever
I took the calcium lactate and the ephedrine as suggested by you, for more than three months and have practically cured my hay fever. That was last autumn. Should I resume the use of calcium lactate in the spring or in the autumn, and if so, for how long? (Mrs. B. A. W.)

Answer—It would do no harm to take another course of calcium lactate each spring or autumn, beginning a week or two ahead of your usual hay fever season. Any one who takes this remedy against hay fever, asthma, angioneurotic edema, recurring hives, hyperesthetic or atopic rhinitis, or migraines, may take 10 grains of calcium lactate in powder or tablet, after food, three times a day, with a drink of water, and continue not less than 10 weeks. It is harmless, the occasionally upsetting to the stomach, and while it fails to do any good in some cases, it seems to bring great relief in others. I hope all who try it will report what effects, if any, they obtain from it.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE bunch played on the bridge a while. The Traveler M. took with a smile, said, "Well, I think we've had enough of China for this trip. What say we move along our way and head for some place else today? We'll reach the next place where we'll stop, upon a great big ship."

Then Clowney cried, "Where is it? Gee, I love to sail right out to sea. What stretch of water will we cross and how long will it take? I'd like a cabin all alone that I can call my very own. I hope we'll ride a quiet sea and watch no breakers break."

"My goodness," said the Traveler M. "I guess you've said all that you can, so now I'll tell you where we're bound. We're going to Japan! I've arranged for everything. I hope a lot of fun 'twill bring. The boat awaits. We'll get aboard as quickly as we can."

And so, it wasn't long at all until the Tinymites heard the call of, "All aboard." Then off they sailed to Japan far away. They sailed across the Yellow Sea, which was as calm as it could be. On entering the Korean Strait, the whole bunch cried, "Hurrah!"

At last the boat began to stop and when they heard the gangplank drop, we Scoutly shouted, "Come on, lads. We're in Kyoto now! I'm sure that we are welcome here and there is not one thing to fear. We can't talk Japanese, but we will get along somehow."

Kyoto was a pretty place and Clowney said, "Let's have a race right up to town, so we can eat. We'll all have many adventures. Soon on a small side street, they found a dandy place. They gathered round and stood right in the open, eating very good rice cakes."

(The Tinymites meet a Japanese flower girl in the next story.)

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—There's nothing in the appearance of Utah's democratic senator—the tall and scholarly William H. King—that suggests he would interest himself in a subject so highly technical as radio.

He looks like what he really is—the jurist who has spent years on the supreme court bench of his state. His dignity impresses one immediately. On the floor of the senate, in the committee room or in his office always he seems the same.

His manner is deliberate. When he speaks in the senate on such subjects as the tariff or marines in Latin-American countries—the latter his favorite topic—one can almost visualize the black robe of the justice draped over his shoulders.

He chooses his words with care. He presents his case in a straightforward and meticulous fashion.

Television Student
Radio and its problems have long interested him, but until a short while ago he never bothered to make a serious study of this subject.

His friend, Senator Dill of Washington, is one of the senate's recognized authorities on radio, and heretofore King has been content to let him lead the way.

But with the advent of television his curiosity became aroused. He decided to do a little personal investigating of the whole subject. Now he has some very definite ideas and plans to work for their adoption.

He has become convinced that the existing radio law must be thoroughly studied and brought up to date by congress at its next session. But it is the television angle which particularly interests him.

"Television is so new and so important," says the senator, "that it staggers the imagination. Few are aware of its potentialities. For that reason we must become acquainted with it."

The question of censorship of television is being considered by him.

Three Radio Experts
But when that phase he admits that he must do more investigating. "It is a matter to be considered from all angles. It's certainly something to think about."

With Senator King entering the radio field the senate will be well fortified with expert opinions when the subject comes up for discussion.

Sensor Dill is a student of radio and has made it his legislative hobby for a number of years. He is co-author of the present law.

And Wallace H. White, Jr., of Maine, the house's radio expert and co-author with Dill of the Dill-White radio legislation, moves over to the senate for a six-year term next December.

BRAZIL'S WAR MEASURE

On May 23, 1917, the Brazilian Chamber of Deputies passed the first reading of the administration measure revoking Brazil's neutrality in the war between Germany and the United States.

The bill was intended to authorize the government to utilize German ships in Brazilian waters. During the debate on the bill, the greatest enthusiasm was shown in the chamber. The galleries were crowded with members of the diplomatic corps and other prominent persons.

A pacifist deputy who attempted to speak was interrupted by other deputies who cried, "The Germans are assassins!"

On this day in Europe the Germans failed in three attempts to wrest Montornvillers Heights from the French. The Italians, on their front, were successful in crossing the Timavo estuary and occupying San Giovanni.

RURAL PUPILS RETURN HOME FROM CAPITAL

Second Annual Educational Pilgrimage Reaches Appleton Last Night

Excited and eager-eyed, anxious to see a thousand and one wonderful things they saw in the nation's capital, about 100 graduates of Outagamie-co's rural schools returned at 11:15 last night from Washington, D.C., after a four-day commencement trip through the east.

It was the second time an Outagamie-co graduate group had gone to Washington. Last night, however, the volume of traffic on the streets about the Chicago and Northwest depot was much smaller. For about an hour before the special train arrived, cars were parked on early all of the streets within a block of the station.

Last year traffic for several blocks on every side of the depot was absolutely tied up for a short time after the train arrived, bringing back the first group which numbered more than 1,100. Hundreds of cars were jammed about the depot last year, whereas this year perhaps 100 extra machines were all that were needed to meet the returning vacationers.

Praises Enthusiasm
"What we lacked in numbers this year we certainly made up in enthusiasm," said A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, who headed the tour. "I am more convinced than ever, after this second trip to Washington, that the visit to our national capital is an educational venture which no student or adult should miss."

Mr. Meating explained that he made no effort this year to secure a large number. He said he was disappointed that more graduates could not go but that those who went will ever forget the things they saw at Washington.

Actually seeing the buildings where the country's government is operated brings government closer to the minds of the children than any amount of teaching ever can do," he said.

And some of this spirit was displayed by the returning graduates themselves.

There a little girl whose parents had not accompanied her, was excitedly relating about how she had seen two senators and a congressman and the place where George Washington lived. Here, a bright-eyed, husky haired youngster was busy bubbling over in his efforts to explain to his dad the height of the Washington monument. But the excitement at the spot didn't last long. Within 15 minutes after the special train arrived most of the tourists had departed.

Many of the boys and girls still clung to the empty luncheon pails in which they had carried their meals. On the return journey they ate in a dining car.

Winnipeg-co. Group Joins

This year the Outagamie-co group, which left Appleton last Sunday morning, was joined at Oshkosh by a group of several hundred from Winnipeg-co. The two groups made the trip to and through Washington together.

The special train carrying the graduates reached Washington about 10 o'clock Monday morning, following a short stop at Harper's ferry, and spent that day sightseeing about the capital. Monday night was spent in a Washington hotel and all day Tuesday the graduates saw more sights and visited more buildings in Washington.

Among some of the things they saw were: the senate and congressional chambers, the white house, Mount Vernon, Annapolis Naval academy, Washington monument, Lincoln memorial, the old and new national museums and hundreds of others.

And the returning graduates didn't overlook the fact that they had seen where the "president lives" and Lindbergh's famous plane, "Vogel." This was evident from the fact that these places were mentioned scores of times by the excited youngsters.

The return journey started from Washington at 8:30 Tuesday evening.

Who's Who On The Appleton-Post-Crescent

Number 70

(This is the seventieth of a series of articles about members of the staff of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The articles will seek to acquaint readers of this newspaper with those persons as individuals and also will discuss the nature of their work. Members of the staff are presented in the order of their length of service. The seventy-first article will appear tomorrow.)

Peggy Post, who spends most of her time snooping around Appleton shops in a search for new and exciting style ideas for her column, "The Shop Window" which appears every Monday on the society page of the Appleton Post-Crescent, is really Miss Lillian Plotkin, newest member of the staff.

She divides her time between shopping tours and reporting the news of the city schools. She came to the Appleton Post-Crescent in January, from Wausau where she did advertising in a woman's shop.

Miss Plotkin was a society reporter on a Madison newspaper during her senior year at the University of Wisconsin. She attended the state university during 1928 and 1929 and spent her first two years in college at the University of Toledo, Toledo, O. She is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, local sorority at Toledo and the Wisconsin chapter of Coranto, professional journalistic sorority.

Miss Plotkin was born in Toledo, O. She went to Roosevelt grade school and Libby high school there. Most of the summers during her childhood were spent in summer camps, which has given her an interest in outdoor sports. She lives in Appleton with Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bateson, 212 W. Prospect-ave.

(Editor's note—This sketch of Miss Plotkin would not be complete if it did not contain the information that she has been the author of this series of "Who's Who" articles. Her versatility as a writer is convincingly demonstrated by this series.)

FINAL REAL ESTATE TAX PAYMENTS ARE DUE MONDAY, JUNE 1

Taxpayers Gain Day of Grace as Result of Holiday on Saturday

Outagamie county residents who took advantage of the opportunity to gain a three-month respite on the payment of half their real estate taxes this year, must pay these taxes before the close of office hours next Monday if they wish to avoid the payment of interest and penalties set by the state law, according to Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer.

It had first been announced that taxes must be paid on or before Friday, but District Attorney Stanley A. Staidt ruled this morning that taxpayers had until Monday to pay because Saturday, which is Memorial day, is a legal holiday. The law says that taxes must be paid by June 1, but District Attorney Staidt ruled that inasmuch as Saturday is a holiday, that taxpayers are entitled to an extra day.

Many Outagamie-co residents took advantage of the time extension granted under the law this year. Some of these already have paid their taxes, Miss Ziegenhagen said. If taxes do go delinquent the regular penalties will be assessed as of Feb. 1, the date on which all taxes ordinarily become delinquent. This is a substantial amount in many instances, Miss Ziegenhagen said.

Good Fishing Can Be Found In Region Of Three Lakes

BY B. A. CLAPLIN

One of the real "fishy" regions of Wisconsin is the chain of lakes about Three Lakes. It is commonly known as the Three Lakes waters. There are Clearwater, Planting Ground, Little Fork, Big Lake, Spirit, Virgin, Deer, Thunder and a host of others.

There is good fishing in all these lakes. If the angler is not lazy and is willing to get out and look for it. Naturally it is not so good in the immediate vicinity of the resorts, but right on the main-traveled highways, where many people stop and throw in all kinds of lures every day during the open season.

But, if the angler means business, is willing to work, and is properly equipped with the right kind of tackle, he will have no difficulty making good catches of about every species of game fish. As an indication of what fish are in the Three Lakes waters, though I do not speak from actual knowledge of the number taken, it is claimed that more muskies were caught in Big Lake last season than in any other water in northern Wisconsin. As I said, however, that is a claim made for it by different persons, and one which I cannot substantiate. What I can say from actual knowledge is that there are a great many of these tigers in Big Lake and in many other waters of the Three Lakes region, for I have taken them there.

The eastern shoreline is well adapted to bass fishing. They are Or-wigos, or large mouth, and they take "plugs" readily. There are many old snags along the shores of the different bays, and about such spots the big bass are likely to wait for their prey. By floating in your boat about fifty feet from shore, and casting in toward the land line and you will get the bass.

Bass are a rather particular fish to angle successfully for. It is quite a simple matter to go out onto a bar in some lake, bait your hook with a live shiner, and take wall-eyes. But when it comes to taking bass, well, that's something different again. To begin with, you must seek them at the right time, that is, when they are feeding, and they do not feed at any old time, not here.

Usually, you can get them rather early in the morning, and almost always from about sundown to dark. The latter time is when they are up in the shallows after minnows. Use a light plug, one of not more than one half ounce weight, or even less. A float is best for late fishing. By that I mean as darkness comes on. You do not have to make so many casts as to make them correct. Either start your lure back in before it actually touches the water, and then keep it moving, or when it hits the surface of the water let it lie perfectly quiet for a few seconds. So many anglers are indifferent as to the proper way to cast that they have little or no success. There is much study of the right methods necessary before one really can qualify as a successful bass angler.

Teasing Is Not Fair To Small Child

BY ANGELO PATRI TEASING

Baby sister played cheerfully all morning. She talked to her dolls, gave them their baths and their breakfasts and words of wisdom. She made a house for them of a couple of chairs and an old shawl and made calls upon them and upon her mother, Mrs. Kitchy-kitchy. Each time she said that name she chuckled in delight to her own creative ability.

"All out of her own head, she found that nice name for mommy."

The household was peaceful and happy all day until Bill came home from school. Bill was nine and Baby Sister four. After Bill made a stamping, stormy entrance, tossing his hat at the rack, his books at the table, he turned his attention to Baby Sister.

"O' hullo, Sis. You there? How's the dolls?" Playfully he picked up one of them and began opening and closing its eyes with a sudden jerking movement.

"Don't don't Bill, You hurt her."

"Hurt her. You silly. As if anybody could hurt a doll. I can turn 'em all inside out and never hurt them a mite. Dolls can't feel," and true to his word he seized the dolls and began twisting and turning them about in his hands. To Baby Sister this was death to her children and she lifted her voice in loud protests, howls, shrieks.

"What is all this?" said mother hastening down the stairs. "Bill, what are you doing to the child?" She was perfectly all right until you came in and bothered her. Put the dolls down and leave them alone. I should think you'd be ashamed to tease the child as you do. You never come into the house but some such things as this happens. Go upstairs and find something to do."

"Aw, she's just a big baby. Cries if you point your finger at her," and behind his mother's back the bold Bill stuck out his tongue and made a terrible face at his little sister who howled the louder.

"When you see a boy do this day after day, when you see him blustering, swaggering, bullying, consider his ways. A happy successful boy does not do this. He may flip his sisters curls as he passes but he will not persistently hound her. Only the boy who is failing, or the girl, teases weaker children habitually."

The failing child longs to feel powerful.

ONE DEAD, OVER SCORE INJURED IN FREAK WRECK

Twelve Coaches Lifted from Tracks Near North Dakota-Minnesota Line

orhead, Minn., notified railway officials and within a few minutes doctors, nurses and ambulances were en route.

Scores of volunteers, including police, farmers and Moorhead citizens, climbed inside the coaches and passed the injured to waiting hands.

Despite the tremendous shock of the impact, scores escaped uninjured, due chiefly to the fact all cars of the train were of steel. None of the coaches collapsed.

The first of the injured were rushed to hospitals at Moorhead and Fargo in automobiles of passing motorists. A few minutes later a special train from Fargo reached the wreck and took the remaining injured and other passengers.

One of the heroes of the wreck was Andrew Jackson Seminoe Indian, en route to his home at Pawnee, Okla., who aided injured and assisted in restoring order immediately after the crash.

Several hysterical Seven persons were imprisoned for half an hour in the train club car when doors jammed. The barriers were chiseled away and the persons, several in hysterical condition, taken out.

The luxuriously equipped train, one of the fastest in the northwest was named after the late James J. Hill, "empire builder" of the northwest and had been in service for three years.

Engineer McKee and Al Klimehn, Minneapolis, fireman on the engine said the 12 coaches literally were jerked away from the locomotive. The coupling between the first car and the tender snapped as the high wind struck, but the 154,000 pound locomotive stuck to the tracks, although it shook noticeably.

TAKE ANOTHER LIFE

Moorhead, Minn.—(AP)—Whipping through two western Minnesota counties with a suddenness that defied the laws of nature, a tornado took a toll of at least two deaths Wednesday, injured many others and caused thousands of dollars of damage, a checkup revealed today.

The Empire Builder of the Great Northern railroad, traveling east-bound through North Dakota, from Seattle, was wrecked killing Andrew Anderson of Montevideo, Wash., and injuring more than a score.

Melvin Hatfield 13, was killed as he crouched in the basement with other members of the family at his farm home eight miles north of Watts Siding. He was struck by a concrete block dislodged from the foundation of the house as the structure was lifted from over the heads of the family.

The tornado apparently started north of Rustad in Clay-co and swept northeast, striking the Empire Builder near Sabin. Then it continued onward crossing Norman-co to end its destruction near Fertile, cutting a swath of about 50 miles.

Widespread damage was done to farm property in the two counties, with dozens of buildings, school-houses and one church reported demolished or damaged. Large groves of trees also were leveled along the path of the storm.

A heavy rainfall followed the storm, and was generally over the western part of the state and the eastern part of North Dakota.

DISTRICT PLAN WOULD CHANGE 9TH DISTRICT COUNTIES

Eliminate Langlade and Include Shawano-cos Under Proposal

A plan for reapportionment of congressional districts in Wisconsin, which is expected to be backed by regular Republicans in the state legislature, would eliminate Langlade from the Ninth district, which includes Outagamie-co., and would replace it with Shawano-co. as the district would still contain the counties, but Langlade-co. would be placed in the eighth district and Shawano-co. would be removed from the eighth and placed in the Ninth.

The plan, which is expected to be regular G. O. P. support, would eliminate the eleventh district entirely and would result in changes in all the other districts, except the fourth and fifth in Milwaukee.

The majority of the committee has decided to work out the reapportionment in a progressive but most of the congressmen lay claims to this fact.

ONE TO TWO LOTS MAKE GOOD GARDEN

Sell Says Plot of Land of This Size is Sufficient for Family of Four

From one to two city lots, when used as a truck garden, will supply green vegetables for a family of four for an entire summer, and will furnish a sufficient supply of potatoes for the winter and an extra quantity of green vegetables for canning, according to Gus Sell, county agent.

Mr. Sell said a plot of land of this size would easily supply enough potatoes for the winter for a family of four, in addition to all the other green vegetables.

Mr. Sell suggested that in addition to potatoes, a plot of this nature would supply room for raising ample quantity of onions, radishes, sweet corn, cucumbers, tomatoes, beets, beans, carrots, peas, lettuce, spinach and cabbage.

Recently the Citizens' Committee on Unemployment issued a request to citizens owning lots that could be cultivated to register them with the committee. These lots would then be turned over to those families in need of help for cultivation.

FIRE TRUCK TO BE REMODELED, COUNCIL VOTES

Clintonville City Fathers Appropriate $500 for Work

(Special to Post-Crescent) Clintonville—A special meeting of the city council was held Tuesday evening for the purpose of considering the question of remodeling the present truck. Members of the police and fire commission met jointly with the council. After considerable discussion, it was voted to remodel the present fire truck and Mayor Herman Kratzke appointed Alderman Joseph L. Meyer, H. M. Tesse and Arthur Campbell as a committee to attend to this matter. It was at first estimated that over $1,200 would be required for remodeling, but a more thorough investigation revealed that about $500 would cover the necessary work. The local fire truck has been in active service for many years and has never been remodeled. A new truck of larger capacity such as the council considered purchasing, would cost about $9,000.

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION WORK IS SATISFACTORY

(Special to Post-Crescent) New London—The construction work of the new high school, now under way under the supervision of W. H. Frawley, contractor, is being excellently carried out. W. C. Muehlstein, head engineer of the state, and his assistant, W. D. Wheeler, visited the high school site this week. Their coming was hastened by an ill report regarding materials being used in the construction work, and especially as to whether inferior gravel was being used in cement work.

Both inspectors stated that the gravel is of the best quality and in every way in keeping with the specifications. The use of washed gravel, it was pointed out, is not compulsory in the work being done at the present time, and the fact that good clean sand and gravel is used is sufficient. The inspectors were enthusiastic in their reports regarding the entire project as it stands.

PHEASANTS HATCHED IN 24 DAYS IN INCUBATOR

(Special to Post-Crescent) New London—The incubator again has proved superior to the hen, this time in hatching pheasant eggs. The experiment was tried out for the first time in this city by the state game commission under the supervision of Giles H. Putnam.

The eggs were put to hatch in the incubator at the Hillside hatchery on N. Water-st. and after 24 days the chicks emerged. Hen eggs hatch in 21 days.

The chicks are on display in the hatchery window and will be turned out to be raised by hens. Mr. Putnam states that other pheasant chicks will be hatching this week. These are being cared for by William Meyers, Fred Rogers and Andrew Laib. The eggs arrived from the Peñ Creek game preserve and after being cared for during the summer by hens, will be turned out on the Springvale golf course about Sept. 1.

Mr. Putnam states that he knows of at least five pheasant hens which are settled in their old ways on the golf course. Many of the rabbits on the Springvale preserve are caring for hidden families and from all appearance have wintered in excellent condition. The shipment of Hungarian partridge promised Mr. Putnam last summer are to arrive soon to be released on the preserve.

LOW OF WATER IN CITY WELL IS SLOWING UP

Long Period of Dry Weather Felt at Kaukauna Pumping Plant

Kaukauna—Long periods of dry weather have resulted in a slower flow from the well that furnishes the city water supply. A service compression pump is used at the pumping station to help keep the city reservoir on the island filled. The service pump, which is used at times when the flow is slow, is being operated nearly 24 hours a day at the present time. The well is more than 700 feet deep. There is also a second well, which is not being used at the present time, that is maintained as an emergency well.

Pressure of the city water is kept up by the use of the large standpipes on Taylor-st. The tank has a capacity of 360,000 gallons of water. Enough water is kept in the tank to maintain a pressure of about 65 pounds. This pressure gives the water force to flow from the faucets in the city.

A small pump is used to keep the water in the tank at a uniform height in the summer, while in winter the level of the water is raised and lowered in order to keep it from freezing. A large new reservoir was built by the city some time ago on the island and about eight feet of water is kept there at all times.

Approximately 3,561,002 gallons of water were used in the community during each of the first three months of this year. This amounts to approximately 472,133 cubic feet of water for each month, according to figures obtained at the city water department.

Annual Hollandtown Schut Is Scheduled For June 10

Kaukauna—For the eighty-sixth consecutive year marksmen of this vicinity will gather at Hollandtown on Wednesday, June 10, to shoot at a wooden bird perched on top of a 55 foot pole. The event has been held annually at Hollandtown since the second year after the community was settled.

It is one of the surviving customs dating back to about the year 1,000. It was a celebration staged annually in which many sports were played, including bow and arrow shooting, horseback riding, wrestling and running. It was handed down from one generation to another.

The schut was brought to America from Holland by some of the early settlers. Following the schut is an all day social at which the schut "king" is feted.

The "king" is crowned immediately after the shooting and he becomes king by shooting the last bit of the bird down. He remains king for the entire year.

The St. Francis Schut society is in charge of the event this year. John Coppes is captain, John Gertrus secretary and John Van Abel treasurer. A cash prize of $35 will be awarded to the "king" of this year's schut.

Mass. Opens Program Opening the day's celebration will be a high mass said at the St. Francis Catholic church by the Rev. F. X. VanNistlerooy. After the mass the shooters will parade to the shooting grounds. A community dinner will follow the shooting for the "king" and other participants at the VanAbel hall. A social will follow during the afternoon and evening, with music and dancing.

In telling of the schut the Rev. Van Nistlerooy said: "It is a tradition that keeps the past with the present and keeps expressing the esteem and veneration which the present generation owes to that of the past, a generation which after all is the layer and foundation of the present."

Hundreds gather at the scene of the shooting each year to witness the event, which is one of the main topics of discussion of farmers in this section for weeks. The wooden bird sometimes resists the shooters and last year held on with a tenacity that required 75 rounds of shot to bring it down.

PRAISE AIRPLANE BUILT AT MADISON

Mechanic Studied 13 Months Before Building Machine

Madison—(P)—Thirteen months of careful study of scientific design has enabled Charles F. Keen, Madison, an expert mechanic, to build an airplane whose performance in test flights has elicited high praise from Les Smith, Northwest airways mail pilot.

"This plane is a pilot's dream," Mr. Smith said after testing it. "She responds to every touch on the controls as though she had been born in the air."

The craft, a monoplane, was built in nine months by Mr. Keen, and according to pilots, it has the appearance of a factory-made machine. The pilots say its performance is well above the average for ships of its type.

Mr. Keen built every part of the monoplane himself except the motor—a 30 horsepower engine—the wheels and the propeller. He used dural instead of steel throughout the frame. According to local pilots, the ship has three features not generally found on craft of this type. It uses the sweep-back wing design, which shifts the center of gravity and increases the stability of the plane in the air. Cowling is placed over the engine to decrease air resistance and increase power, and air wheels, a recent aviation development, also are used. The wheels, which are all tire except the hub, are to decrease strains on the craft in landing and taking off.

While Mr. Keen has not obtained a flying license, he is an experienced mechanic and has had some experience in flying. He plans to take examinations for the permit.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU "GEMINI."

If May 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:10 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., and from 3:30 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger hours from 8:30 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. and from 9 p. m. to 11 p. m.

May 29th denotes, astrologically, sudden changes of plans, brought about by circumstances over which you have no control. There will be little real work accomplished. In the evening, conditions are "set fair" and favor social activities and entertainments.

Children born on this May 29th will be highly strung, and should not be judged by general standards. They will be different, and require different treatment. They will prove to be abler students of nature, than of books. Their dispositions will be emotional, passionate and sincere.

Born on May 29th, you will have by no means a prosaic life. It will be full of "ups and downs," and eventful, and not till you have attained years of discretion, will it be successful. You were created with a spirit of adventure, and if circumstances have permitted you to follow your inclinations, you will have travelled much and seen much. Although easily adaptable to environment, you are never content to remain in one place or stick at one occupation for any length of time. You always seek change of scenery, other associates and new enterprise. No "beat-on track" ever satisfies.

Gifted with a keen intellect and very susceptible to impressions, your varied experience will fit you for work—when and where you settle—and you will have a better equipment than those who have never strayed from home. You will be to bear "on your job" originality, and you will bend a business to your will, rather than allow a business to bend you to its will. Herein will lie your success.

Those born on May 29th should not marry until the "wanderlust" is out of their system, as only discord can result if they feel themselves committed to obligations under which they will chafe.

Giants Win And Cards Lose; McGraw Team Now Leads Loop

CUBS IN THIRD PLACE AS REDS ARE BEATEN 8-4

Athletics Resume Winning Ways by Bumping Yankees, 6 and 5.

BY GAYLE TALBOR JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
It's been a long, hard haul for John McGraw and his New York Giants, but they finally have reached the top of the National league percentage column.

After having flirted with the leadership for a week, during which common sense at times told them they were ahead but the figures told them differently, they removed the last doubt by trimming the Boston Braves yesterday, 7 to 4, while the St. Louis Cardinals were receiving a blanketing from Pittsburgh, 4 to 0. The Giants were out in front by a game and a half today, despite the fact they were several points behind the Cards before yesterday's momentous proceedings.

It is the first time the Red Birds have been dislodged since the race began. The first time, in fact, since the latter stages of the 1930 marathon. Hogan Gets Homer Frank Hogan, husky Giant catcher, and Heine, Pittsburgh right hander, collaborated to change the complexion of the race. Hogan, better known to his public as Sam, swung one of Socks Seibold's choicest curves into the stands with two on base to climax a four-run Giant rally in the third inning from which the Braves never recovered.

Boston threatened in the eighth, sufficiently to cause the removal of John Beatty, but Heaving went in and quieted them.

Meine and the Cardinals down with eight scattered hits, all singles, to hang up his fourth straight victory. Meine is the only pitcher who has held the Cards scoreless this season, and he has turned the trick twice. He blanketed them with four hits on April 26. Lloyd Waner accounted for four of the Pirates' ten hits off Johnson and Lind.

Boston's third straight loss to the Giants cost Bill McKee's hopes of their hold on third place. The Chicago Cubs, by downing Cincinnati, 8 to 4, moved in. In scoring their fourth consecutive victory the Cubs pounded four Red hurlers for 11 hits, Riggs Stephenson leading the assault with two doubles, a triple and single in as many attempts.

After having seen their lengthy winning streak clipped the previous day, the Philadelphia Athletics got right back on the victory trail with a 6 to 5 decision over the Yankees. Bing Miller doubled with the bases loaded in the eighth to score Cochran and Simmons with the winning runs. Cochran contributed his eighth home run of the year.

Washington In 2nd Place
Walt Johnson's Washington Senators took advantage of the opportunity to move into second place. Their double victory over the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 3 and 4 to 3, gave them a game ahead of the Yankees and four ahead of the Sox hit four doubles and a triple in seven times up in two games.

The Chicago White Sox a doubleheader with Detroit by scores of 4 to 4 and 10 to 1. Pat Caraway's pitching in the second tilt featured the day. In addition to holding the Sox to five hits and one run, Caraway's victory of the season, he led the Sox attack with three singles and a double, and scored three runs. A four-run outburst off Earl Whitfield in the last of the ninth gave the Bushmire victory in the first game.

The Cleveland Indians produced a similar punch in the ninth round to take their third straight from St. Louis, 5 to 4. Held to one run until the ninth the Indians came back to drive Sam Gray from the hill and win on Burnett's climactic single. Wes Ferrell went the route to win his seventh game.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia were not scheduled in the national.

COACHES LOSE JOBS
At least 75 college football coaches in all parts of the United States will not return to their old jobs when the season of 1931 gets under way.

Before Friendship Ceased

Max Schmeling, right, champion of this world's heavyweight boxers, and William L. (Young) Stribling, left, the Georgia challenger, won't be strangers when they enter the ring in Cleveland's new stadium the night of July 3. They met and shook hands at a dinner held in Cleveland for the fighters and the fight executives, put on by the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Ohio, backers of the championship tussle.

Valley League Gossip

CHIEF WILLIAMS, one of far in three games, he hasn't got a single hit.

Wisconsin Rapids showed a new outfielder, Graber, in the game against Shawano and he performed in a way that made a good impression on the fans. The newcomer got one hit in four times at bat besides counting two runs.

Bo Molenda, the Green Bay pitcher, is leading the Valley league batters with a plus average of .536. The Packer footballer has got seven hits in three games, one of which was a home run and another a twin sacker.

Evidently, Manager Huber's threat to clean house on the Wisconsin Rapids ball club because the 1930 champs, after taking two on the chin, got going right and smothered Shawano, 14 to 1.

Eddie Kotal, who has signed to play with Green Bay, will do a lot of traveling this season. Eddie is living in Stevens Point and this means that for nearly all of the games he faces a round trip of 200 miles.

Johnny Phillips, veteran Kaukauna third sacker, is wondering what has become of his batting eye. In other years, Johnny was always dangerous there at the plate, but so Business continues to be good at the gate all around the circuit. Both Kaukauna and Green Bay had their biggest crowds last Sunday and the attendance at Wisconsin Rapids was much better than the management expected.

Red Ashman made a successful debut behind the log for Kimberly. The former Appleton backstop has replaced Hank Jensen, the Oshkosh veteran. Ashman is a hustler, has a good peg and probably will hit around the .300 mark.

Gottschalk, the Shawano youngster who won his first two starts in the Valley loop, was chased to the showers by Wisconsin Rapids. Manager Phil Hoffman took up the pitching duties but his fast ball was clouded hard.

Shorty Zuidmuller is playing bang up ball around the first base for Green Bay. The former shortstop is hitting above .300 and he is rapidly pecking up in the fielding and. The youngster is the hardest worker on the team.

Several of the pitchers, who haven't worked this season, will see action over the weekend. Dave Zuidmuller will twist for Green Bay. Crowe is to make his bow for Appleton, and Ritten is to toss 'em for Kimberly.

Wahl, Green Bay's recruit center fielder, robbed Poca of a double in Sunday's game. The Kimberly pitcher hit one a mile but Wahl dashed to the fence and made a one handed stab of the blow which was ticked off for two bags.

One of the feature combats, on Decoration Day is the Wisconsin Rapids-Kimberly encounter. Both these clubs are loaded with sluggers and, if Poca and Eastling taking the mound, it should be the toughest kind of a battle.

The Shawano Indians will be away from home in both the contests over the weekend. On Saturday, Phil Hoffman and Co. will exhibit their baseball wares in Kaukauna while on Sunday the Indians are billed for Appleton.

BADGER NINE LOSES TO MADISON BLUES
Madison —(P)— Collecting 17 hits for 24 bases, the Madison Blues of the Wisconsin state league last night easily defeated the University of Wisconsin baseball team, 13 to 8. Wisconsin made eight errors and the Blues five.

BETTY NUTHALL BEATS HELEN JACOBS, 6-3, 6-2
Roland Garros Stadium, Antwerp, France—(P)— Betty Nuthall, England's leading woman tennis player, today defeated Helen Jacobs, of California, in straight sets in their quarter final match of the French hard court tennis championships. The scores were 6-3, 6-2.

Newark, N. J.— Jack Thompson, San Francisco, outpointed Pete August, Bridgeport, Conn., (10).

Paul Marx, twice captain of the Louisiana State University boxing team, plans to become a professional fighter.

NEENAH TENNIS STAR IN MILWAUKEE MEET

Milwaukee —(P)— With a record title of 32 already entered in the lake shore tennis tournament, the dead line for entries was moved forward until 5:30 o'clock this afternoon by tourney officials.

The contest, to be played on the town Club courts, includes among entries Robert McMillen, Neenah, former university of Wisconsin tennis team captain and holder of the Elmer state closed singles title; Billy Schommer, Milwaukee, slugged champion; Leo Boldenweck, Chicago, a university teammate of McMillen; Harvey Weller, former holder of the state open title; E. A. Wilberg, Chicago; Roy Peronto, Fred Forchert and Clayton Shaw, all of Manitowish.

BILL HARRIDGE IS NEW PRESIDENT OF AMERICAN LEAGUE

Former Secretary to Ban Johnson Will Serve for Three Years

Cleveland —(P)— There wasn't much doubt in the mind of American league club owners today that they had selected not only a diplomat as their president but a man who can handle the "big stick" as well as the late "Ban" Johnson and Ernest S. Barnard.

The new league head, William Harridge of Chicago, who was elected to a full three-year term at yesterday's special meeting, is a quiet unassuming man of 46. He seldom talks much but there have been occasions when he has acted quickly, decisively.

For 17 years, he served as private secretary to the stormy Johnson, a task that forced him to become a shrewd diplomat, and to waive the "big stick" many times in Johnson's absence because of illness. During the past three years, when he has acted as secretary of the league under the late Ernest S. Barnard, he has won the admiration of American league club owners with quick thinking and efficiency.

"They don't have to worry about Will Harridge," said Henry Edwards, head of the American league service bureau. "He doesn't say much but he knows what he's talking about. And he can wave the big stick when necessary."

Harridge is the third American league president and the third one who never played major league baseball. Johnson and Barnard were connected with the game closely before their elevation to the presidency, but Harridge frankly admits that he never played a game of baseball in his life.

"No, I never played the game," he smiled when asked about his baseball career. "I didn't know the difference between a passed ball and a strikeout when Mr. Johnson hired me as his private secretary 20 years ago so I had to do a lot of study."

Harridge did study and today he is rated as one of the smartest baseball men in the game.

LEGION JUNIORS WILL START PLAY TOMORROW

American legion junior baseball players will get started on league games at 5:30 Friday evening on two grounds. The Third ward Juniors will battle the Elmer club at the Elmer stadium and the Fourth ward Brewers will show against the Fourth Ward Bears at Interlake park.

The four team league was organized several weeks ago and has for its purpose instructing the boys in the fine art of playing ball, and giving them a chance to get a head start on the game.

Several of the pitchers, who haven't worked this season, will see action over the weekend. Dave Zuidmuller will twist for Green Bay. Crowe is to make his bow for Appleton, and Ritten is to toss 'em for Kimberly.

Wahl, Green Bay's recruit center fielder, robbed Poca of a double in Sunday's game. The Kimberly pitcher hit one a mile but Wahl dashed to the fence and made a one handed stab of the blow which was ticked off for two bags.

SHIRES' BAT POTENT BUT MINNEAPOLIS BEATS MILWAUKEE

One Time Great Man Gets Homer, Double and Two Singles

CHICAGO —(P)— If Manager Johnny Corriden of Indianapolis could locate some pitching talent to match the power of his batting attack, the Indians probably wouldn't be in seventh place in the American association.

The Indians today had a team batting average of .323, and an average of better than 12 hits a game for 33 games, but Oral Hildebrand, young southpaw, was the only regular hurler with a winning percentage.

Indianapolis yesterday made an effort to build up its hurling staff by purchasing Marty Griffin, a right-hander, from Montreal of the International league, and signing Russ Miller, veteran right-hander, who was released outright by Columbus.

Saint Louis Blues
St. Paul, leader of the race, evened its series with Kansas City yesterday, defeating the Blues, 6 to 4, and coming from behind to do it. Kansas City had a 4 to 2 lead going into the fifth round, two more in the sixth and added another in the seventh.

Fenner, Saint catcher, headed up the attack with a triple, double and a brace of singles. Huck Betts held the Blues to seven hits, widely spaced after the third inning.

Columbus, hung to second place by whipping Indianapolis, 7 to 6, although outbitt, 15 blows to 11, by the Indians. Ash and Chapman were unable to halt the Indians, but Archie Campbell gave a great exhibition of relief hurling by holding the losers to two hits in the last two innings.

Evans and Eddie Decker led the Red Bird attack with three hits apiece.

Millers Beat Brewers
Minneapolis shook off its slump by kicking Milwaukee, 10 to 8, in spite of the batting efforts of Art Shires and the pitching of Art Shires.

Shires, who had a home run, double and two singles, and his team's total was 18 hits, most of them wasted. Norris and High hit homers for the victorious Millers.

Louisville scored its second victory in seven games, by defeating the Elmer and Roy Wilkinson led Elmer club, 12 hits for 5 to 3 decision. Clyde Hader and Roy Wilkinson led the Elmer club to eight hits. First baseman Jack Smith of Toledo, was benched by Wilkinson in the eighth inning and several stitches were required to his head.

He was wound in the back of his head. He was unconscious when carried from the field, but was revived in the dressing room.

SONNENBERG DEFEATS M'COY AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee —(P)— Gus Sonnenberg, onetime claimant to the title of world's heavyweight wrestling, last night defeated Bibber McCoy in the windup of a wrestling match here.

McCoy took the first round with a toe hold in 23:22 when Sonnenberg conceded the fall. McCoy lost the second round in 4:15 when he was unable to return to the ring and Sonnenberg wound up the affair in 55 seconds in the third with a flying tackle.

Ken Radick, former Marquette university football star, and George Kogut, Chicago, went 20 minutes to draw.

Mack Wants A Third And Maybe A Fourth Pennant

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1931

NEW YORK —(CPA)— Connie Mack, veteran manager of the game-winning Philadelphia Athletics, is not possessed of a vaulting ambition, but he made known before he left, to take on the New York Yankees in his home town that he has an iron-clad determination to win a third consecutive pennant with his aggregation if he can. Also he even hinted at destroying a fourth straight flag.

"When," inquired the interviewer jokingly, "are you going to let up on the remainder of the American league?"

Mr. Mack did not answer directly. First of all he wishes to win three pennants in succession to establish the fact that he has a real championship team. A year ago he thought no team could be considered really championship in texture unless it won a pennant two years in succession. Having won two championships hand running, he has raised his pennant ante. It is not because he admires his players that he wants to inspire them to greater deeds.

"What will happen to the American league race if the Athletics go on and on like the government and taxes?"

Will Go On and On
"The American league race will go on and on," said the veteran manager sedately. "Did I not go on and on when I was at the bottom and could hear the wheels rumbling over my head all the time? Baseball must always go on and on, sometimes with one team at the head and sometimes with another. As long as there is a head, there must also be a tail. Isn't that a logical truth?"

"If the Athletics win three pennants in succession will you be happy then?"

"Yes, very happy, but," and he deliberated a moment, "I could be made happier."

"What would bring that about?"

"To win four pennants in succession," was the reply.

"Then there is never a limit to satisfaction; never a time when you are satiated with pennantry, if you will pardon the coining of a new word."

"No, I suppose not. Like every other man connected with professional baseball, I want to leave it to the fact that he has a real championship team. A year ago he thought no team could be considered really championship in texture unless it won a pennant two years in succession. Having won two championships hand running, he has raised his pennant ante. It is not because he admires his players that he wants to inspire them to greater deeds."

McLARNN DEFEATS BILLY PETROLLE AS 18,000 FANS WATCH

Jimmy Takes Six Rounds, Opponent Three and One Is Even

BY ALAN GOULD Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(AP)—Jimmy McLarnin's come-back, by way of a decisive victory over Billy Petrolle, satisfied the minds of fightdom today that there are still plenty of customers available, providing they have the proper fistic inducement.

There was not the slightest sign of depression as a crowd of 18,000 packed Madison Square Garden, to see McLarnin turn the tables on Petrolle last night and gain the unanimous verdict of referee Arthur Donovan and two judges after ten alternately brilliant and mediocre rounds of scrapping.

The gate receipts $82,377 set a new "high" for 1931 and stimulated a feeling of prosperity in Garden circles that has not been manifest in many a moon. It demonstrated once again that McLarnin is the greatest drawing card in New York rings for his weight and inches.

McLarnin waged a cool and calculating fight, designed to frustrate the rushes of Petrolle.

Despite an injured right hand, Jimmy's plan of campaign was sufficiently effective to give him a clean-cut margin in six of the ten rounds. Three of the others went to Petrolle and one appeared even.

There were many dull and super-cautious minutes of sparring that brought disapproving boos from the crowd, but the roars rocked the rafters as McLarnin clouted and cut Petrolle with punishing drives in the third, fourth and ninth rounds. Jimmy was unable to put his rival down, or take the sting from Billy's counter-thrusts, but Petrolle bled profusely from the mouth and nose under the bombardment.

McLarnin favored his damaged right hand almost from the outset, using it chiefly in the third. It was hurt in his previous go with Petrolle and according to his manager, Pop Foster, met with fresh damage last night.

Speed Stars Await Start Of Indianapolis Races

INDIANAPOLIS—(AP)—Automobile parts were scattered all over the garages at the Indianapolis motor speedway today as starters in the 500-mile race to be run Saturday were given their final thorough inspection.

Most of the drivers—among them the world's most famous pilots—merely looked on as their mechanics reached into the power plants to make certain that everything was in correct adjustment. A few put on jumper suits and gave their mounts personal attention.

All of the cars were due for a short run on the track some time during the day to check carburetion, shock absorbers and performance at the speed each has set for himself during the long run. The track was to be closed at 4 o'clock for its annual chemical bath to remove oil and other hazards.

Drivers will not be permitted on the rough old course again until after their meeting late tomorrow afternoon with the race officials at which time they will be given final instructions. Following that session, the men will be permitted on the track for a few minutes and then must put away their cars until race day.

Qualification and elimination trials began last Saturday and ended yesterday, and out of them came the fastest field that ever won places in the starting lineup of a 500-mile race. Thirty-eight of the thirty-nine gasoline-powered cars averaged better than 100 miles an hour, the exception missed the century mark by only a fraction of a mile an hour.

Oil Burner to Race
The fortieth car in the race is the Cummins oil-burner, which qualified at 96.871 miles per hour. It had only to do 80 miles an hour under the rules, while the gasoline-motored type had to attain a minimum of 90 miles per hour.

Never before in the history of a 500-mile race has the competition for a chance at the $100,000 prize money been so keen. Six cars that had battered the minimum qualifying speed were eliminated by faster entries.

Four of the successful entries have 16-cylinder motors. Thirty others will get their power from the eight-cylinder type that has prevailed in number for years over all other type engine. Six others have 4-cylinder motors.

The qualification trials disclosed that part-stock cars have been speeded up considerably since last year. Ten of the starters Saturday will be part-stock. There will be only four front drive speedsters, among them Billy Arnold's winning mount of last year, which he again will pilot, and the first racer of that type, introduced in 1925.

Veterans of years race driving and youngsters who are just beginning to make names in the speed world will pilot the cars Saturday. In the class of nationally known drivers are Billy Arnold, Russell Snowberger, Shorty Cantion, Leon Duray, Louis Meyer, Babe Stapp and Ralph Hepburn. The up and coming youngsters include wild Bill Cummings, Francis Quinn, a west coast sensation last year, and Billy Winn.

Calling the Strikes

New York—(CFA)—A happy and smiling Babe Herman about this time last year led all National league batters with a nice fat percentage of .430 odd, but the Babe today isn't happy, nor is he leading the league's sluggers. As a matter of fact, a .400 hitting average today is unknown in the National league. A margin of about 70 points separates the leading hitter this year from the high mark set by the Babe last year.

Where has all the difference disappeared to? In the language of the poet—"Where are the figgers of yesterday? Where are the bats that whooped up fear? Where are those who gave pitchers a skeer?—Gone to a sad and lonely bier." That's the answer.

GANGSTER MOVIES ARE LOSING FAVOR

Mystery and Romance Again Gaining Limelight Among Hollywood Producers

Hollywood, Calif.—(P)—The blood and thunder of gang warfare on the screen is giving way to the moonlight and roses of romance and to the thrills and chills of mystery. The drama of cities terrified by machine gun rule is passing out—another cycle of film plots gone on its way to oblivion, temporality at least.

In no major studios are gangster themes of the extreme type such as "Little Caesar," "The Doorway to Hell," and "The Public Enemy," on the production schedules.

Producers seem to believe the public has had its fill of films portraying the workings of gangland, and that the few new on exhibition should satisfy completely any demand that is left. "The Public Enemy" is breaking records in New York, and "Quick Millions," a brilliantly satirical treatment of the rise and fall of a gang leader, is doing well wherever the censors have left it undisturbed.

The loss of interest in gang plots is not due to any official ban by the producers' association, for that organization has remained silent on the subject. But Will Hays, its leader, recently expressed the opinion that changing public tastes, on the desire for more romance on the screen, would bring about the decline of the mob rule theme. This is what has happened.

Although all pictures of the type have emphasized that the criminal always "gets his" in the end, that crime does not pay, and although crime has not been intentionally glorified in them, there has been agitation against gangster pictures on the ground that they exerted a harmful influence on youthful screen fans who forget the gangster's certain end and glory in his gunplay.

ABANDON TWO PRACTICES IN STATE PRISONS

Unrest at Convict Farm Results in Abolishing of System.

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press
Chicago—(CPA)—Two prison practices that add to the possible hardships of modern convict life, were virtually abandoned in Illinois penitentiaries this week, following the latest evidence of prisoner unrest at the Joliet convict farm.
Hereafter, except in most cases, inmates in solitary confinement will not be chained to the cell door. In addition the bread and water diet, traditional prison fare for recalcitrants, will be ordered only for limited periods, usually not over five days. In the past the diet was continued for much longer periods.
These now abandoned punishments provided the spark which set off the bloody and extended riots at the Joliet and Stateville penitentiaries, earlier this year. At that time, a prisoner, Joseph Coakley, died while chained.

ed to his dungeon door and his condition was not discovered until some time later. The inference was that he had been weakened by a bread and water diet.

Hereafter, in place of bread and water, prisoners who violate rules will be deprived of the privilege of writing or receiving letters for a set period, or will have the number of their visitors cut down.

Convicts Now Surly
Convicts in this state and in many other states are pictured by officials as being in a surly frame of mind. Rioting now has occurred in nearly all of the Illinois institutions and the prisoners are not yet tractable. Overcrowding, lack of steady work, grievances against parole boards and resentment toward punishment for rules violations and toward ruthless treatment of escaping inmates, are given as reasons for the attitude.

The situation in Illinois is aggravated by an unusual condition which has grown from the state's indeterminate sentence law. Prior to 1927, conviction for robbery with a gun carried a term of from 10 years to life. The legislature of that year modified the term for this offense to from one year to life. There are over 600 convicts serving under the old law. The supreme court ruled that they were not subject to parole under their "good time allowance" until a minimum of ten years had been served. New prisoners convicted for the same grade of offense, however, were eligible to parole after one year.

"This situation has been a chronic source of discontent," explains Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare.

"I am opposed to the indeterminate sentence law, although criminologists all over the country believe in it," Warden Henry C. Hill, of Joliet, says. "In theory it is all right, but it ignores human and political elements.

The parole board doesn't decide cases on the merits of a man, but on the kind of crime he committed. I can pick 200 men in Joliet and Stateville prisons who ought to be out on parole now."

Thus far the state legislature has acted on none of the prison reform proposals growing from recent riots.

STANDARDIZED TESTS FOR GRADE STUDENTS

In the nature of a scholastic inventory, standardized reading tests have been given to every child in the public school system from the first to the sixth grade inclusive. Mr. Younger, supervisor of grade schools, has just spent several weeks giving the tests, which will diagnose a child's ability and reading skill from the tabulated results, which have not yet been made. These tests will be used as an individual record of remedial work necessary for next year's work.

Standardized spelling tests also were completed in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

A gas compressor station under construction at Fritch, Tex., will have 12 units of 1,250 horsepower each.

Mad Pursuit
 BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

Chapter 32
KISSES FOR MEMORY
 AND now Jon's urgency was pushing her past reason into that filmy world of emotion where every value was topsy-turvy. His voice was so compelling and his emotion so vital overpowered her completely.

"We're young. Don't waste these years! Come with me Nora!"

"Jon, you're mad."

"Perhaps. The Thayers have always been mad—if being mad is going straight toward the thing you want and letting nothing thwart you. And I want you. I must have you."

He stopped the car and pulled her into his arms. She felt her cold cheek pressed against his heated kisses, knew that she was swept along on the exciting tide of his longing and vitality past her own will to reason.

"Jon, drive me home," she said. But she did not stop him when he began to paint their future. It was not the color and the beauty, not the excitement and the feverish quest for happiness that fascinated her but that old indomitable longing for security.

Afterwards when Jon brought her home to the old house on the river, then life would begin for her. She would have children perhaps, she would begin to live that deep life that had always eluded her. She would have roots. She would belong to someone.

Damon did not love Jon. She had married him for any trivial reason; what that reason might be Nora could only surmise. For the sake of being married perhaps; for the sake of the fine old house set in its rich fields and woods; for the sake of security. But her love had been only for Nicholas.

Nicholas! Nora thought of the letter she had seen at the Thayer house. She recalled Damon's pale face and the expression of un-like reserve; yet Nicholas had loved Damon, had told her so. And Damon had loved him.

When at last Jon stopped the car before the house on Dove Street he leaned toward Nora and kissed her gently. She felt the freshness of his lips against hers for a moment as she said goodby.

"Jon, if you want me so much I'll come away with you—afterwards," she told him. "But go now. Please go."

She stepped out of the car and stood swaying on the good solid pavement. Jon was driving slowly off. Someone had opened the door of Aunt Em's. Nora saw a man's figure against the light. He came down the steps to her.

"Nora! Fergus asked."

"He took her arm."

"Damon won't forgive my father. She's going to bring him to trial. And I think I shall go away with Jon, after all."

"Fergus," Nora whispered, "Fergus, don't look at me like that!"

"Like that?"

"As though you hated me!"

The light from the street lamp fell full on his face. She could see his pain, his antagonism and something else that was struggling to the surface.

He took her arm and they began to walk away from the house. Suddenly she had to justify herself in his eyes. To explain to him or was it to herself?—the whole sorry situation. She told him how she and her father had always lived; how this strong desire had grown up to her to have deep roots. She tried to make him see what the old house on the river bank meant to her. But when she had finished he said violently:

"You don't know what you're doing!"

"But that's just it—I do know."

"You can go off with that boy—yes I'll admit he's charming—but he has no stability. He's lacking in the very thing you want. You can't do this. You won't!"

"Nothing can stop me."

"I'll stop you."

She stood stock still and turned her head to him.

"You to say this when you and Fran—"

"That's different!"

"It's only different because it's happened to me."

"I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Fran loves you and you say you don't know what I'm talking about. Oh, Fergus, sometimes I think you are unspeakable!"

They walked a way in sultry silence. Fergus said abruptly that he had to stop at the grocer's. The grocer knew them well and he smiled as he glanced at Fergus' stern face and Nora's blazing eyes. His glance seemed to imply that he knew they were lovers and had quarreled. It was at this moment that Fergus chose to tell her that Fran had come home that afternoon.

"And you never told me before!" she flung at him.

"I was so upset by what you said I forgot all about it."

"How in the world should I know?" she answered loftily.

Once outside he told her in that same abrupt way that at the first of the year he was going to Germany to study. She listened without comment as he told her about his plans. She could see him living alone in a German pension, going to lectures, coming home at night to study in a stuffy pension room; or wandering along bright clean avenues toward a concert. He would undoubtedly marry one of those apple-cheeked Frauleins with flaxen hair. She found herself despising his wife with her good nature and hating him even more fiercely in his complacent happiness.

"You'll be lonely, won't you?"

"I'll be too darn busy to think of loneliness," he answered.

"And what of Fran?"

"Fran's the salt of the earth. But Fran has her husband and her children."

"As though that has anything to do with it!"

"I think you're a fool, Nora!" he said violently.

"Leave me! I won't walk with you a single step further. Give me those packages!" she cried and tried to wrench them out of his arms.

She climbed the first step and stood looking down at him. Their eyes crossed like antagonists. A little smile turned up the corners of Fergus' mouth.

"If it comes to the worst I'll go out and tell Jon Thayer just what I think of him!"

"Do you think that would ever stop him—or me?"

"If I have to find a way to stop you, I will," he repeated.

"Don't you know that nothing you could ever do—would stop me once I made up my mind?"

"Nothing, Nora?"

He caught her wrist. The packages slipped out of his grasp. But they did not even see them. He climbed the step beside her and bent and kissed her and kissed her again.

"You won't forget me, anyway," he whispered.

She scatched away her wrist, and ran up the steps and rang the bell furiously. Again she ran in angry vehemence. She turned to see Fergus picking up the packages and she laughed shakily and pounded on the door with her fists. She was tired of Fergus, pity of his way of telling her what she should do.

The door flew open and Fran stood there. They were in each other's arms, laughing, speechless, breathless.

"Oh, Fran, how wonderful to have you home again!"

They went, arms still about each other, to the living room. Alice struggled on her father's lap, while he rose suddenly to take Nora's hand. She liked him, in spite of herself, this ugly man with his attractive smile. She saw Aunt Em's face with its strained work look and Halie with her thin sardonic smile.

"Dickie, it's time for bed," Fran said, glancing at the clock.

"Nora let us stay up for hours and hours!" Dickie played rebelliously.

"I didn't, Fran, honestly. I made them go to bed—"

She followed Fran up the narrow stairs, pretending not to see Fergus who had let himself in with his latch key, pretending not to remember how he had kissed her and told her that she wouldn't forget him.

SUPREME COURT RULING IS AID TO BUS FIRMS

Many State Laws Become Obsolete as Result of Opinion

BY GEORGE E. DOYING

Copyright, 1931, By Cons. Press

Washington—(CPA)—New laws enacted within the last few months by half a dozen or more states, as well as a two year old law of Florida, are virtually thrown into the discard this week as a result of the decision Monday of the Supreme Court of the United States in ruling upon the Florida statute relative to contract carriers.

Efforts were made in nearly every state legislature that was in session this year to pass bills for the regulation, and in many cases for the taxation, of all motor vehicle operators carrying goods for hire, including not only the common carriers, but also those doing business under contract, perhaps exclusively for a single customer.

The Florida law, enacted in 1929, provided that all "Auto transportation companies" using vehicles "in the business of transporting persons or property for compensation or as a common carrier" must secure certification from the state railroad commission, and must file rates, give bond for the protection of shippers and public, and otherwise submit to control.

Excluded Some Buses carrying school children and trucks used to transport farm and dairy products and fish to market were excluded.

S. Smith was engaged in hauling merchandise as a private carrier under special contract with the Atlantic & Pacific Tea company. He had but one customer and never held himself out as a common carrier. When he refused to apply for a permit under the new law he was arrested. The circuit court held the law as applied to Smith was unconstitutional, but on appeal the state supreme court upheld the statute, and the case then was appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

In an opinion written by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, the court held the law unconstitutional. Among other reasons, it was declared that "there does not appear to be the slightest justification for making a distinction between those who carry for pure farm products, or milk or butter, or fish or oysters, and those who carry for hire bread or sugar, or tea or coffee, or groceries in general, or other useful commodities."

"No separate scheme of regulation can be discerned in the terms of the statute."

Salient Points of Bidding

Contract: South, with 3 1/4 Quick Tricks in hand, opens the bidding with one No Trump. West passes and North, with 2 1/4 Quick Tricks, bids two No Trumps. East passes and South bids three No Trumps, concluding the bidding.

Auction: South obtains the declaration for his opening bid of one No Trump.

The Play

West opens the Four of Hearts, North plays the three and East takes the trick with the Ace. With the Heart holding in Dummy, East can see that no good can come through a return of that suit. East himself, however, holds a sure re-entry in the Club suit, should more than one Club trick be necessary for Declarer to go game. Consequently, he should shift to the Spades and lead the four rather than the Jack, for the wasting of a high honor might leave the eight of Spades in Dummy to take the four on the final round.

The chances are greatly in favor of the Spades not in sight being divided 3-2 as between South and West. South fineses the Queen of Spades, which West takes with the King, returning the seven. This trick South takes with the Ace. The Club finesse being necessary to go game, it might as well be taken at this point.

Since it loses, East will take two Spades, a Heart and a Club, which, together with West's King of Spades, holds Declarer to two odd.

Mr. Whitehead will answer one question at a time concerning your bridge problems. Write to him in care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

In considering valuation and bidding in general, the proper results that are to be obtained rather than upon what may be accomplished on any particular hand. For this reason, it seems proper that once in a while a hand should be given which may be defeated, even though the bidding would appear to be well within the ordinary limits.

In the above deal, South would play the hand at No Trump either at Auction or at Contract, while at Contract the bid would be three No Trump, no matter what system of bidding might be in use. With this example in view, the ordinary player should realize that he should not curb his bidding simply because a hand soundly bid once in a while fails to deliver.

act with respect to those considerations of safety and proper operation affecting the use of the highways which may appropriately relate to private carriers as well as to common carriers," the opinion said.

Has No Power

"It is true that the statute does not in express terms demand that a private carrier shall constitute itself a common carrier, but the statute purports to subject all carriers, which are within the terms of its definition to the same obligations. Such a scheme of regulation of the business of a private carrier is manifestly beyond the power of the state."

The decision is a blow to the railroads, many of which made strenuous efforts to have similar laws enacted in other states—and with success in several instances. The contract carriers have taken from the railroads vastly more freight business than the motor vehicle common carriers. In many states the latter are subject to substantially the same sort of regulation that is applied to the railroads, in addition to which the motor carriers frequently pay special taxes for their use of the highways. The contract carriers, however, have paid nothing more than the customary automobile registration fee until Florida and other states undertook to control them and incidentally levy special taxes. In the Florida case the supreme court held it necessary to pass upon the tax feature of the law.

Laws more or less similar to the Florida statute were enacted during the recent sessions of the legislatures of Georgia, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico and Texas. The Georgia law has been enjoined by a bus operator.

NINE DISEASES TOOK NO LIVES IN STATE

Madison—(AP)—Nine diseases which have caused the loss of numerous lives in Wisconsin in the past failed to take a single toll in 1930, the bureau of vital statistics, state board of health, announced today.

Typhus fever, bubonic plague, anthrax, gout, beriberi, leprosy, relapsing fever, German measles, and glanders caused no deaths in the state last year, the report states. Cholera, rabies, malaria and undulant fever claimed but one Wisconsin life each. Two lives each were taken by paratyphoid, scurvy and pellagra.

Superfluous Hair Removed Roots Devitalized—Regrowth Impossible

Now You Can Remove Ugly Hair From Face or Any Part of Body, Right in Your Home. Koremlu Safe and Certain

Just as radio, telephone, permanent wave, and other modern things were bound to be discovered, so it was certain that a process would be found for destroying unwanted hair so that it would stay out.

It took a skilled French chemist to achieve this distinction. The result, Koremlu Cream—an amazing product which actually devitalizes hair roots. They cannot produce hair again, yet Koremlu is safe and pleasant to use.

Koremlu works gradually, weakening the hold which the hair root has and finally destroying it. The hair becomes so loose it can be plucked out with the fingers. At last no hair at all grows in.

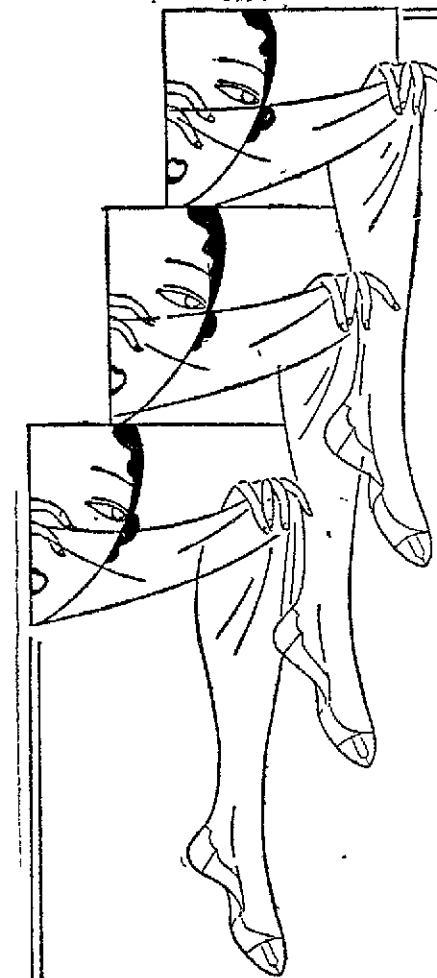

Koremlu does not just burn off the hair, letting it return coarser and stronger than before. It is not painful or dangerous and it has no bad after effects. On the contrary, Koremlu leaves the skin in lovely condition and many women continue to use it as a cold cream even when their hair has been completely removed.

Koremlu Vanishing Cream has all the effectiveness of Koremlu Night Cream in destroying roots of unwanted hair and in addition makes a lovely powder base.

Begin using Koremlu today and hasten the time when your undesired hair is in the limbo of forgotten things. Remember results are guaranteed if directions are followed. Koremlu has not failed yet but if it should, you get your money back. Ask for descriptive booklet. $5.00 a jar.
